N. Y. FAVORED, 8 TO 5

500 in Line at Dawn to Buy Tickets, See Ruffing and Derringer Hurl Opener.

BULLETIN

NEW YORK — McCormick's single in the fourth scored Goodman with the first run of the 1939 world series to give the Reds a 1 to 0 lead over the Yankees here today.

NEW YORK—Europe's destructive war faded far into the background today for thousands of baseball fans who thronged Yankee stadium and clustered about radios for the opening of the game's greatest spectacle — the world series which this year pits the hustling Cincinnati Reds of the National league against the powerful New York Yankees of the American league.

The generally fair but warmer weather predicted for today was expected to produce an attendance of between 50,000 and 60,000 in Yankee stadium.

Pitching for the Yankees who hope to hang up a new series record of four consecutive victories will be big Charley Ruffing who won 21 games this season. And carrying the hopes of the Reds who won their first major league pennant in 20 years this season will be Paul Derringer with a record of 25 wins.

"Deacon" Bill McKechnie, the word-thrifty manager of the Reds, displayed nothing more than an optimistic smile while "Marse" Joe McCarthy, his Yanks 1 to 3 favorites to win the series and 8 to 5 favorites to cop the opener, said succinctly: "It all depends on the pitching."

At dawn, some 500 shivering baseball fans, including two women, were in the rapidly growing line, which police broke into three queues to keep from blocking the sidewalks.

Probable line-ups for today's game:

RULE MUZZLES RADIO PRIEST

Coughlin Speeches Hit By Broadcasters, Curbing Talks on Controversial Topics.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Radio time will not be sold to "spokesmen of controversial public issues," except under rigid limitations, under a new rule adopted by the code committee of the National Association of Broadcasters.

Father Charles E. Coughlin was said by the association's secretary, E. M. Kirby, to have been mentioned yesterday in discussion preceding adoption of the rule, which will apply to all stations in the organization.

Kirby said others mentioned were Judge Joseph F. Rutherford of New York, president of the Watch Tower Bible and Tract society, and the Rev. Walton Cole of Toledo, Ohio, a Unitarian minister who has purchased radio time to reply to Father Coughlin's speeches.

Controversial public issues, the committee said, may be discussed on the radio during free time available for such broadcasts or on public-forum-type programs under control of the station or network. Manuscripts of speeches must be submitted in advance.

Discussing the fight over the arms embargo, retention of which Father Coughlin has advocated, the committee said:

"While all Americans desire to stay out of war and preserve neutrality, the methods of achieving and maintaining the same are

U. S. CONTRACTS FOR 329 TANKS

Spends $6,000,000 For New Infantry Equipment.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A $6,000,000 order for 329 high speed army tanks was announced today by the war department.

The contract, one of the largest made for munitions recently went to the American Car and Foundry company, New York and Berwick, Pa.

The tanks weigh approximately 12 tons, the war department said, and are thus heavier than the army's existing standardized light tanks, designed to operate with infantry. The new weapons cost $17,790 each.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The Columbus weather bureau today deleted Canadian points from the daily weather chart it provides the Associated Press.

"Probably because of the war," an attache explained.

VANDENBERG'S SPEECH URGES EXISTING BAN

Michigan Foe of Embargo's Repeal Warns of Dangers of 'Unneutral' Act.

FOLLOWS CONNALLY

Takes Senate Floor After Texas Senator Pleads for 'Cash, Carry' Plan.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) told the senate today that administration efforts to repeal the arms embargo were directed at reaching "into the existing arena of foreign war" to aid one belligerent against another.

Vandenberg arose to read solemnly a speech opposing revision of the neutrality law after Senator Connally (D., Tex.) had predicted that Germany would begin sinking American merchant vessels unless the administration bill was adopted.

The measure would substitute a "title and carry" system of sales of munitions and all other supplies for the present arms embargo. It would prohibit American ships from carrying any goods to warring nations.

Vandenberg said he thought that repeal of the embargo would be "a deliberately unneutral act which may too easily be the forerunner of others when once the habit starts."

Charges Discrimination.

"Consciously or otherwise—but most consciously," he said, "we are asked to depart from our neutrality policy in behalf of one belligerent whom our personal sympathies largely favor and against another belligerent whom our personal feelings largely condemn.

"In my opinion, this is the road that may lead us to war and I will not voluntarily take it."

Vandenberg declared it was a "treacherous doctrine" that "we can do a lot of things 'short of war' to help our favorites—as though we might successfully be half in this war and yet stay safely out."

SHOW NO MERCY

France Launches 'Merciless' Economic War on Nazis.

PARIS—(AP)—The cabinet today charged Blockade Minister Georges Pernot with the task of organizing and conducting a merciless economic war against Germany, coordinating efforts at home and abroad to restrict supplies to Germany and working in closest cooperation with Great Britain.

Premier Edouard Daladier reported on the military and diplomatic situation.

It was understood that the cabinet, which met as a formal council of ministers under President Albert Lebrun, also considered the proposed German "peace offensive" and agreed, with Great Britain, that peace on Hitler's terms was unacceptable.

Police Move to Curb Double Parking, Warn Truck Drivers

Double parking on downtown streets today became the center of attack in the police department's revival of its "sustained law enforcement campaign" as Police Chief Meade K. Bates acted to relieve congestion in the business district during rush hours.

Bates warned truck drivers making deliveries on the streets that "unnecessary" double parking would not be tolerated.

As the first move, in the concentrated drive this morning officers were dispatched to the Post-office and the Railway Express agency to warn against double parking while space at the curb was unoccupied.

Terming the practice as "altogether unnecessary," the chief said that other deliverymen would also be warned should they "take advantage" of regulations which permits them to stop only while making deliveries.

"Truck drivers have been taking advantage of this regulation and

With the current Panama conference of 21 American republics adopting the suggestion of establishing a 200 to 300-mile neutral ocean "band" around North and South America, a fleet of 350 armed vessels becomes immediately available for the task of patrolling these zones. Map, above, shows the number of vessels which can be contributed to the patrol fleet by western hemisphere neutrals, other than the United States. Of the 350 warships the United States probably would contribute 280 war vessels, besides many planes now in coast guard service.

Army Gives City Peek at What It's Doing to Bolster Defense

Mansfield today had a squint at what Uncle Sam is doing to back up the "No Trespassing" sign on American shores. A mechanized detachment of the 7th Cavalry Brigade of Fort Knox, Ky., stopped at Central park for a half hour this noon.

About two thousand people were in the park and around the public square at 12:30 when the major part of the detachment entered the square. Behind the brigade band came the line of mechanized fighting and field equipment.

The unit from Camp Knox, which is a part of the regular army, is returning home after a 500-mile swing around the state in the interests of recruiting men to bolster the army to almost full peace-time strength.

Major E. N. Harmon, who was in command of the 17 vehicles and 75 men, addressed the crowd and told them that contrary to public opinion the recruiting is not for war strength but merely to bring the army up to the 227,000 which was authorized under the defense act of 1920.

The detachment arrived here from Ashland and headed for Mt. Vernon.

Timorous citizens who may have had some misgivings about invaders from abroad coming over here and taking the United States, found comfort in the formidable tanks, armored cars, combat cars and the field guns.

The Camp Knox cavalry unit is an example of what America is doing to build up its national defenses so that they are second to none in the world, army men said.

Battery D, 134th Field Artillery, which has its headquarters at the Mansfield armory, also was represented by Capt. R. J. Nichols and several officers at a recruiting tent in Central park. The battery hopes to enlist 15 additional men as a part of the national guard's own recruiting campaign.

FIVE TO ONE

That's Day's Voting Result in Neutrality Poll.

On the second day of the neutrality debate in Washington, Mansfield citizens voted five to one in favor of retaining the embargo on arms.

Of 60 ballots received today in The News-Journal's poll on neutrality, 50 were for retaining the present law and ten were for repealing it in favor of the cash-and-carry plan.

The total remains at 79 per cent in favor of the present embargo on the sale of arms. To date 1,000 votes have been cast, of which 847 are for the present law and 228 for repeal.

The ballot appears on page 2 of today's issue of the paper. If you haven't already voted, mark it and send to Neutrality editor, News-Journal.

Rents Boats to Handle British, French Shipping

Gets Vessels From Norway, Seeks New Agreements With Sweden, Denmark to Carry on War-Time Traffic; Bid For Pact With Finland Near.

(By United Press)

STOCKHOLM—Soviet Russia today arranged to rent Norweigian ships to carry on war time trade with Great Britain and opened negotiations for similar agreements in Sweden and Denmark.

The Soviet deals were for the purpose of carrying on trade with the Allied powers through sub-Arctic waters in order to avoid the German naval blockade of the Baltic sea, it was understood.

The Russian export bureau requested that Norway, Denmark and Sweden agree to rent ships which would be used chiefly to transport lumber to Britain and France. A quick decision was asked.

The Norwegians accepted the proposal, but both Sweden, which is directly across the Baltic from Germany, and Denmark, which borders the reich, reserved decision.

MOSCOW—(U.P.)—Diplomatic quarters awaited today a Russian invitation to Finland to send its foreign minister here to sign a pact of "mutual assistance" and complete Soviet domination of the inner Baltic.

Finnish quarters professed to be unperturbed by the Russian campaign. They said that Finnish-Russian relations were good.

However, after summons to the foreign minister of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, it was forecast in diplomatic quarters that Finland would be next. Its inclusion in the new Baltic set-up would give Russia complete domination of both side of the Gulf of Finland, and thus strengthen its new position in the Baltic proper, extending down to Lithuania.

Completes Air Pact.

On the Balkan end of its new European program, Russia last night concluded an agreement for the first commercial airplane service between Moscow and Sofia, Bulgaria.

Some mystery attached still to Russia's negotiations with Turkey. Turkish Foreign Minister Sukro Saracoglu had already been here five days longer than he intended to stay, and he was expected to be here for four or five days more.

It was reported that Russia had receded from its maximum program for its future relations with Turkey. Usually reliable sources reported that Russia envisaged originally the possibility of inducing Turkey, long its friend, to abandon its pro-peace policies and join with Great Britain and France.

Now, it was reported, Russia was seeking a mutual aid pact of its own with Turkey which would operate only in event a third power attacked Turkey or Russia. It would not militate, it was said, against Turkish support to Britain and France, so long as they were not involved in war with Russia. Turkey, it was said, could be a valuable ally for Britain and France and in present circumstances, and particularly valuable if Italy entered the war on Germany's side.

BERLIN: Chamberlain's Stand Not Clear to Nazis, Hitler Says

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN—Reichsfuehrer Hitler was described by informed persons today as holding that Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech in the house of commons did not give a clear reply to the German-Russian peace declaration of Moscow.

These informants said Chamberlain's statements of yesterday "left unanswered the question of war or peace" and contained nothing substantially new.

They asserted that Hitler expects "a clear political reply" to the Moscow peace gesture. The fuehrer, they said, expects responsible heads of governments to take a clear stand.

Statesmen of the western Allies apparently will have at least two days more for any further reply to the Moscow stand, before Hitler makes his promised statement to the reichstag.

That will not come before Friday, it was said, and may be Saturday. All indications today were that the fuehrer was preparing to go tomorrow to Warsaw to enter the Polish capital as a conqueror.

Officials evaded replying to direct questions as to his plans, but preparations pointed to the Warsaw journey.

After the reichstag speech, authorized sources said, Hitler will await the reaction in other lands and then enter into new consultations with Russia and re-examine the whole situation with Italy.

In other words Hitler apparently still is not in a hurry to start operations on the western front.

German authorities still regard Turkey as not lost to their lineup of nations. They insist

PARIS: French Crack Down on Advocates of 'Immediate Peace'

(By Associated Press)

PARIS—Military authorities cracked down today on persons whose names appeared as signatures to an appeal for "immediate peace," arresting two and starting an inquiry against 29 others.

These steps seemed to characterize the government's reaction to the German-Soviet Russian offer of peace based on the partition of Poland. The appeal, in tract form, had been circulated among members of parliament.

The two men arrested were identified as writers. One named Locois and the other Jean Giono. The arrests were made under a decree law of Sept. 1 forbidding any publication "susceptible of exercising an unfortunate influence on the spirit of the army and the people."

The French cabinet intensified the economic war against Germany with a decision to attempt to block both food supplies and economic credits destined for the reich.

A communique issued after a cabinet meeting in the Elysee palace under President Lebrun said the new minister of blockade is "allowed to take measures to restrict arrival in Germany of foodstuffs" and to "hinder arrival of economic credits."

He also is "specifically charged with the conduct of the economic war in collaboration with the finance ministry," the communique declared.

The position of Blockade Minister Georges Pernot, who was appointed Sept. 13, is closely aligned with that of his British counterpart, it was explained.

There was no indication whether any action was taken at the cabinet session in regard

Shotgun Fired as 'Scare' Kills Girl, Wounds Sister

OHIO YOUTH, 19, JAILED, FACES MURDER COUNT

Shot to Frighten Another Youth, Accused Says; Girl Shot at Street Corner.

(By Associated Press)

CAMBRIDGE—A shotgun blast fired by a 19-year-old youth to scare another man last night killed Ida Arthurs, 19, and wounded her sister, Mrs. Edna Butler, 21 of Newark, Police Chief J. J. Gibson reported today.

Gibson asserted that Richard Knight admitted firing the shot, but had explained that he did not intend to shoot the women.

Gibson quoted the youth as saying he intended to frighten Floyd May, 20. The officer said a murder charge would be filed against Knight.

The two women fired upon as they stood at a street corner here, had spent the evening in a beer parlor with Knight, May and Linton Reid, 20, Gibson said.

The chief reported that an argument developed there over Mrs. Butler's plans to obtain a divorce. Mrs. Butler had been living with her sister and parents near Byesville.

Gibson said the two women were standing with May and Reid when Knight approached in a truck and opened fire. The three men were arrested, but May and Reid were released today, following Knight's statement.

Ida Arthurs was dead when taken to a hospital here. Her sister was wounded in the shoulder, but physicians said she would recover.

Teams Pass Halfway Mark of Fall Campaign at First Report Meeting.

Holding the first report meeting of their fall membership campaign at the Evergreens restaurant at noon today, the 21 two-man teams of the Chamber of Commerce reported 45 new members signed up. The goal of the mid-year campaign is 80.

The Eckert-Mehl and Conard-Geiger teams were the first to reach a set quota of five new members and each team will receive a gold plate, to be given the first team to reach that mark.

Final reports on the campaign are to be heard at another luncheon meeting at the Evergreens restaurant at noon Friday, according to John G. Routzon, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

Lester Redding, honorary chairman of the membership committee, presided at today's meeting, and reports of teams were called for by Robert Remy, co-chairman.

C. L. VanDerau, president of the C. of C. announced that he would award a president's prize at the close of the campaign to the team obtaining the most new members.

HEARS VARIETY OF PETITIONS

Council Refers Requests and Claims to Committees in Two-Hour Session.

Damage claims and petitions heard by council last night in a two-hour session were referred to various committees.

The claims were those of R. H. King, agent for the estate of J. J. King, for $151 for damages resulting from a break in the curb which allowed storm water to damage the basement wall of the King building at Park avenue and North Walnut street, and another from F. A. Voegele, 541 Park avenue west, for $26 damages to a Lida street property as the result of a WPA improvement in 1937. Both were referred to council's claims committee.

A petition from property owners on Willis avenue from East Fourth street to Temple court, requesting the extension of the "no parking" ban to include that section of the street went to the street committee.

A request for the construction of a sanitary sewer on Gilbert avenue, south of Chilton avenue, was turned over to the sewer committee.

Included in the legislation tentatively approved were appropriations which included $2,450 for the city's share of the cost of paying Woodward avenue and $150 for obtaining title to abandon railway right of way in North park.

Transfer of funds authorized included $860 within the sanitary sewer fund for the purchase of supplies at the sewage disposal plant, and $300 from the city building repair fund for sustenance of jail prisoners.

An ordinance authorizing the construction of a sanitary sewer on Cook and Woodhill roads and the acceptance of a plat of land in the vicinity of Morris parkway to be added to Maple lake park also were approved.

GRANTS DELAY

Appeals Court Continues Hearing of Mandamus Suit.

Hearing of a mandamus action against the Richland county auditor and treasurer, scheduled for Thursday before the appeals court at Canton, had been postponed today until Oct. 10.

The court granted the continuance on the request of counsel for Michael Hallabrin, Mansfield, plaintiff in the case against the county officials, to permit the attorneys more time to study records to be used as evidence.

Hallabrin filed the suit as a taxpayer, asking the court to require Auditor Norman L. Wolfe and Treasurer John B. Kolb to assess and collect certain personal taxes he contends are due on the estate of the late Frank B. Black, founder of the Ohio Brass company.

Prosecutor G. W. Marriott will represent the county officials at the hearing while Atty. Joseph A. Bayer, Mansfield, is one of the attorneys for Hallabrin.

Soldiers, Girls, Blackouts Cause British Headache

CARDIFF, England—(AP)—Gray-haired aldermen of Glamorgan county pondered the moral welfare of auxiliary army girls during blackouts today with special scrutiny of "gossip and goings on" concerning soldiers billited around farms.

Alderman Hubert Jenkins suggested a 9 o'clock curfew and complained that some young men were "not behaving themselves as they should." He said the county had a moral duty to the girls to do something about it.

Alderman David Davies said good girls needed no looking after.

The alderman finally decided to take up with the auxiliary army authority the question of who was responsible for looking out for the girls after hours.

SAYS OHIO DEMS NEED BRUNNER

Professor Tells Women's Club Mansfielder's Only Man Who Can Unite Party.

Complete harmony within the Democratic party and the willingness of leaders to forget their differences was advocated here last night in an address before members of the Dolly Madison club.

Asserting that "no political party can win an election unless there is harmony and united effort from top to bottom," Stuart MacGowan professor of political science at Kenyon college asserted that Henry G. Brunner, former Mansfield mayor and now state manager of the Home Owner's Loan corporation, was needed to lead the Democratic party in Ohio.

"There is only one man in Ohio who can unite the Democratic party," MacGowan said. "That man is Brunner."

Brunner's name has been frequently mentioned as the next chairman of the state executive committee, a position he formerly held.

"The place to unite and build harmony is in just such a meeting as this," MacGowan said in his talk at Prospect park.

Short talks were also given by George Blecker, candidate for judge of municipal court and Mayor Claude M. Hunter, who is seeking re-election.

Other candidates who were introduced were Philip Smith, candidate for councilman-at-large, City Auditor Paul L. Kelley, Arthur L. Croak, Sixth Ward councilman, and Henry Beilstein, Third ward candidate for council.

REFLECT RISE IN AUTO SALES

License Plate Transfers for New and Used Cars Soar.

Transfers of license plates at the Richland County Automobile club in the past two days indicate an unprecedented sale of new and used cars, Deputy Registrar Frank Beverstock said today.

The first two business days of October saw 38 license plate transfers. Beverstock said—12 for new cars and 26 for used cars. None of the used cars, however, was older than a 1937 model, he said.

For the same period a year ago, only 18 license plate transfers were recorded, Beverstock said.

Although most of the motor car manufacturers have already brought out their 1940 models, dealers are experiencing troubles getting deliveries of new cars.

GALION—Girl Reserves at their regular meeting Tuesday afternoon made final plans for the annual faculty banquet which will be held Monday night, Oct. 9 at Senior high school building.

Here's What we were Shooting at!

ROME, they tell us, wasn't built in a day. Well, neither was this 1940 Buick you see burning the breeze here.

You'll understand why when you know what we were aiming for. We wanted to combine in one car all the best we've learned in our 36 years in this business.

We think we've got it now. A standout sparkling car with action power and staying power.

It would be hopeless to try to list the whole range of new features—there are some 72 in all.

But you can't drive this car a mile without knowing that you have got hold of something that tops anything you ever handled.

It's smoother, steadier, firmer on the line. It gets up and goes right now, and keeps going without wander, tailwag or wind-swerve.

It takes the roughest roads in its stride, and while we don't want to go hinting about speed, this eager baby can do forty-five in first!

The sudden, soaring, millrace power of its matchless Dynaflash straight-eight engine, electrically balanced after assembly to micro-poised perfection, is velocity smoothed to velvet.

Yes, this beauty is our all-time high—the car we've been shooting at for lo! these many years.

Come drive it and you'll see why.

U. S. WON'T GET IN WAR, BELIEF OF ECONOMIST

Harvard Professor Sees Little Chance of Nation Engaged in Military Fighting.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of two articles presenting the views of Prof. J. Ancon De Hass, world-famous economist of Harvard University, on the chaotic international situation.

BY DAVID W. CHUTE

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.,—(INS)—America will not be actively involved in the European war because the conflict won't last long enough, Prof. J. Anton De Hass, Harvard university economist stated today.

Prof. De Hass, who forsees the possibility of a revolution in Germany in a year, said however that the United States could not escape a boom followed inevitably by a reaction.

"I cannot see how we can avoid a period of intense business and industrial activity," said Professor De Hass. "Chamber of Commerce statements to the contrary are very heartening spiritually, but it is inevitable that if the government attempts to restrain business expansion, there will be nationwide protest and the attempt will be futile.

"Moreover there is bound to be the natural reaction of depression with the drying up of war-time markets."

Professor De Hass believes that congress should lift the embargo on munitions in favor of a "cash and carry" policy. He thinks there is little danger of such an act being the first step to our involvement in war.

"If anything, it might retard such a possibility because our ships would not carry supplies of any kind to belligerent nations," he stated. "At any rate, I do not expect that the war will last long enough for us to be involved in a military sense.

"As I read American public opinion it is this: 'we do not want to place any obstruction in the path of England and France. But we do not want to send our soldiers to fight in Europe.'

"Well, we don't have to. Even if the United States should declare war on Germany, why could we not merely extend all our economic facilities to the allies, and perhaps even send our navy over to help clean up the submarine menace, but at the same time, keep our armies on this continent? In other words we could give all the material support to the allies, and let them do the fighting."

Professor De Hass saw no hope of South and Central American trade with the United States increasing to a great extent, but added:

"We could stimulate trade by developing commerce in some of the materials, such as manganese, which this country now imports from other countries."

NEVADA WANTS BEETS

RENO, Nev.—(U.P.)—The beet sugar industry has decided to make sugar beets a "war baby" in Nevada. With no sugar beet acreage allotment in the state at present, the industry will ask congress for permission to plant 10,000 acres in the state.

DIAMONDS SOAR

Follow Commodities in Price Increase Due to War.

Sugar and beans were not the only commodities to shoot skyward with the outbreak of war in Europe. Mansfield jewelers have announced that the price of diamonds has increased as much as 35 per cent.

They point out that there are several reasons for this. While the United States is the largest buyer of diamonds in the world, Great Britain controls the world's biggest supply and Holland and Belgium do most of the cutting.

Diamonds may be used in making war machinery and as a result Great Britain has placed an embargo on them. In Holland and Belgium the 40 per cent of the diamond cutters have been mobilized for military duty while in the United States speculators and investors are buying them up, jewelers said.

Prices have increased as high as 35 per cent on smaller stones, up to a quarter of a carat, and 20 per cent on larger stones.

Dems Suing to Regain Jobs Face Long Court Battle

STATE STARTS COURT FIGHT ON 700 CASES

Each Action to Be Treated Separately, Herbert Says Indicating Long Scrap.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Approximately 700 Democrats, suing for reinstatement in state jobs from which they were dismissed by the Bricker administration, today faced the prospect of a long legal fight.

The office of Atty. Gen. Thomas J. Herbert, counsel for the state officials who did the discharging, said that each case would be handled on its merits.

A decision of the Ohio supreme court ordering the reinstatement of two provisional civil service employes on the ground they were dismissed illegally has raised the hopes of the other litigants for recovery of their jobs, perhaps with back pay.

The attorney general's office, now filing answers to the approximately 700 mandamus actions brought in common pleas court here, is finding numerous legal grounds on which to oppose the petitons, said E. S. Schuessler, chief counsel for the attorney general's office.

Some of the ex-employes will be required to show that they were legally appointed and whether the person whose job they filled was legally dismissed.

Even if they were reinstated, upon orders of the courts, most of the contesting employes would risk being fired all over again should the supreme court find that the controversial civil service reorganization act now is in effect. The measure permits appointing officials summarily to discharge provisional employes.

As for collecting back pay, the former employes can't sue the state and their only recourse would be submitting a claim to the state sundry claims board, legal experts said. The board is dominated by Republicans.

H. T. Chapman, executive secretary of the provisional state employes association, estimated that the 700 litigants might find themselves entitled to nearly $400,000 in back pay.

Approximately 4,500 state employes have been discharged since the Republicans obtained control of the state administration. Many of them have been replaced by Republican appointees.

A group of dismissed workers filed mandamus actions here yesterday. They included:

W. F. Jones of East Liverpool, laborer; Ernest E. Gause of Hanoverton, truck driver; and Norman Phillips of Salem, industrial commission field deputy.

Mansfielder Back, 2 Others Still In War Torn Europe

While two Mansfielders were still "war bound" in Europe, one other has arrived safetly in America, according to word received here.

Robert S. Kinsey, 189 West Fourth street, a student at Johns Hopkins university, arrived Saturday aboard the United States liner, Manhattan. Kinsey landed in France a few days before war was declared and he immediately sought passage home, but was unable to get a place on a ship for three weeks.

While waiting he visited in Paris, Tours and St. Nazaire, leaving from Bordeaux two weeks ago. Kinsey telegraphed his brother, Russell, with whom he makes his home, that he had landed safely and would go directly to Johns Hopkins.

Still in Rumania are Mrs. John Fisher, 25 Buffalo street, and Mrs. Charles Konves, 324 First avenue, who left here in June. Relatives of Mrs. Fisher said they had not heard from her for six weeks, but that the Konves family had received word that the two women hoped to be able to leave there about Oct. 5.

County Studies New Offer on Crossing Job

Up and Down THE STREET

Political observers today were speculating on the appearance in Mansfield yesterday of Charles West, former 17th district congressman who made a brief visit here. The belief was that West, who is said to have an eye on the Democratic senatorial nomination next year if Senator Vic Donahey doesn't seek re-election, was here to feel the "political pulse." Democratic leaders however, said they did not see West or know that he was in the city.

National recognition was given one of Mansfield's bowling teams in this month's issue of the American Bowling Congress magazine, official organ of the sport. The team honored was the Moose lodge club, which the magazine said was one of the "most travelingest" teams in the country last winter. The Mansfield bowlers traveled 4,210 miles to appear in competition in Michigan, Illinois, Indiana and Kentucky as well as in various sections of Ohio.

A married couple riding a transcontinental bus through Mansfield yesterday came to the parting of their ways, but it wasn't domestic trouble that did it. While the bus made a rest stop here, the husband wandered away to look the town over and when it came time to leave he wasn't there. The wife, worried over his absence, pleaded with the bus driver to wait a little longer, but a search was fruitless so the bus went on without him. The driver persuaded the wife to stay on the bus, assuring her that her husband would be given a new ticket to join her later.

The display of Northern Lights last night was particularly impressive and many Mansfielders were called out of their homes and a few of them out of bed, by friends who wanted them to see the phenomenon. Rays of white, pale aqua and rose swept upward from the northern horizon. An unusual phase of the lights was a deep reddish glow around the harvest moon in the eastern sky. The lights were visible from about 9:30 to midnight.

COURT HITS AT EASY DIVORCES

Says He'll Turn Down Persons Requesting Second or Third Decrees or Delay Cases.

Threatening to put an end to what he described as "promiscuous divorces and remarrying," Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston said today that he would either refuse to grant second and third divorces in the future or delay the cases in court for several months.

He made the statement from the bench after refusing to grant a twice-married woman a divorce from her husband who had also been married twice. The case was continued for six months.

"In such cases as this, a divorce only legalizes another marriage and more trouble, so I think I'll put a stop to that," he said.

"When I do grant such divorces after this, the entry (final decree) will be held up for six months to prevent one or both of the parties from going right out and remarrying again," Judge Huston asserted.

After granting a decree to another woman and allowing her alimony, he warned her that "this will give your former husband the right to re-marry and when he does, you are going to have trouble collecting your money."

He pointed out that in cases where the divorced couple has children, the father usually re-marries and assumes other obligations, making it difficult to continue his payments to his children and former wife.

"So the case comes right back into this court again and I'm tired of it," he added.

HITS 'SPONGERS'

O. S. U. Co-Eds Must Pay $1 to Be Eligible For 'Rushes.'

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The freshman co-ed who planned to take in all the sorority rushing parties possible without pledging any group is out of luck at Ohio State university.

Sorority officials, seeking to eliminate "sponging", set up a bureau where all girls interested in a sorority must register and pay a $1 fee before they're invited to rushing parties.

2 FUGITIVES ARRESTED

FOREMEN GET FINE POINTS ON FISHING AS THEY OPEN SEASON

The Mansfield-Shelby Foremen's club members saw how fishing should be done last night—in the movies.

Opening the club's fall season, V. B. Gray, rod and gun editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, showed four reels of color movies and a number of lantern slides made on fishing trips into Quebec and northern Ontario. He explained the pictures as they were flashed on the screen.

The entertainment followed a dinner in the Mansfield-Leland hotel ballroom, attended by more than 200 club members and guests.

The movies included action "shots" of Gray landing big trout, bass and pike, making it appear so easy that the audience wondered how he did it.

Since Gray fishes largely for the sport in it, he throws most of the fish back and the picture of him releasing five-pound bass and pike brought groans from the foremen.

Gray said fish which are thrown back should be handled with wet hands so as not to remove the protective slime from the scales. When it is done, a fungus growth attacks the fish and kills it, he told the audience. He also advised letting the fish rest before releasing it if it has been through a hard battle with the angler.

The Westinghouse dance orchestra and a male quartet from the Westinghouse glee club provided music. Rev. R. L. Foulke, pastor of the Central Methodist church, gave the invocation. Jay S. Cairns, club president, presided.

4,000 AT FAIR

Loudonville Jammed as 51st Annual Street Show Opens.

Approximately 4,000 persons jammed Loudonville yesterday for the opening day of the street fair which marks its 50th anniversary this year.

Concerts by four high school bands and then one by the combined bands were to feature today's program. Providing music from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. were the Danville, Mt. Vernon, Bellville and Nova-Sullivan school bands. The bands were to combine at 4 p. m. for a concert.

A balloon ascension was scheduled for 5 p. m. and three free acts were on the program for afternoon and night. The same acts and the balloon ascension will be repeated Thursday, the last day of the fair.

The second grade at the Loudonville school won first place yesterday in the school playlet contest. Miss Elizabeth Gladden and Miss Ilean Davis are the teachers.

BALANCE DROPS

County General Fund Reduced to $35,000 in September.

With only $4,148 added to Richland county's general fund September, the county balance dropped from $53,336 to $35,033 during the month, Auditor Norman L. Wolfe's report showed today.

Expenditures from the fund amounted to $22,451, or $18,303 more than receipts. The report listed $35,064 in the Mansfield Conservancy district fund, representing taxes collected this year in Mansfield and Madison township.

BOARD BELIEVED SEEKING WAY TO SAVE PROJECT

Reconsiders State's Request for $50,000 as Share for West 4th Grade Plans.

The county may boost its offer of $20,000 on the proposed $600,000 grade elimination project on route 30-N west of Mansfield to save the project, it was understood today, although commissioners declined to comment on the matter.

One of the commissioners said the board was reconsidering the state's request for at least a $50,000 contribution, but he refused to say whether the county would offer that much to place the project on the state highway program.

Commissioners were told three days ago by the state that they must provide $50,000 or more for the work by Oct. 10 or the project will be dropped from the program.

City Boosts Its Share.

Meanwhile, Mansfield city council last night approved an additional expenditure of $3,500 for the project, boosting the city's share to $21,500, slightly more than the county commissioners had offered. The city's increase represents an extra outlay for property damages within the city.

The state several months ago asked the city and county to share the cost with the state highway department, setting the county's share at $125,000. That figure was reduced three times and finally set at $50,000.

Commissioners had said that the county's finances would not stand a $50,000 contribution without seriously crippling the county road department's program for next year. The county and city may provide their share of the funds over a three-year period, ending in 1941.

The huge project calls for construction of an overpass at the B and O. railroad at the city limits and a subway at the Erie tracks about a mile west of the overpass. A dangerous curve on West Fourth street inside the city limits would alse be eliminated.

The state highway department has set aside approximately $450,000 for the project if the city and county meet their share of the cost. Otherwise, the state money will be used for grade elimination work in other counties, Division Highway Engineer Murray D. Shaffer said.

With a membership of approximately 1,300, the association asked the labor board several months ago for certification as bargaining unit for the 2,600 Westinghouse employes.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Just to Keep the Record Straight, Here's Lowdown On 1919 Series Scandal

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—The solemnization of any world series involving either the Cincinnati Reds or the White Sox for the first time since the historic fake of 1919 was bound to evoke memories of that series in which several members of the White Sox kicked away the championship and shook the fair escutcheon of the national pastime to its very marrow if not to its wellsprings.

It is an interesting and accurate if not encouraging commentary on American citizenship that this really unimportant malfeasance became at once in the public heart a betrayal second only to that of Benedict Arnold

It so remains, and today the names of the underpaid wretches who succumbed to temptation and resentment are carved in the American Hall of Shame, while hundreds of judges, mayors and political bosses who jeopardized the liberties of the people by sabotaging democracy are forgiven or, at worst, merely forgotten.

Inasmuch as these individuals are being paraded again in their chains, I think I will just point out a few facts in mitigation, the first being that they were not actively corrupt but were corrupted. They were corrupted by a dirty little sneak sent out from New York by Arnold Rothstein, who was known as a professional gambler but who in truth was no gambler at all but an uncommonly foul and contemptible thief.

Rothstein knew that the White Sox, the greatest ball team ever assembled up to then and possibly the greatest up to the date of these presents, were vastly underpaid by a rich boss who made great show of his openhanded generosity by buying drinks for political barflies and sports writers and contributing to charities.

Rothstein knew also that there were a couple of players on the team who had a pronounced streak of larceny and by promising bribes of $10,000 each to those who were in on the plot he fixed the series. He knew that if he could string them along with small down payments until they had booted away the first game he would have them on a spot and wouldn't have to come up with the rest of the bribe money.

Those White Sox were simply marvelous. Bill Evans, the old American league umpire, said he used to stand behind the plate and just give a guess when Eddie Cicotte would throw up that shine ball of his. Cicotte would rub the ball on a patch of paraffin wax on his pants till a spot about the size of a quarter shone like a full moon and then sling. It would seem to explode like a meteor.

Moreover, they were a great fielding club, two of the square guys being Eddie Collins and Cracker Schalk, who are really historic stars, or immortals.

After the story broke in a great splatter, late in the summer of '20, and the corrupted men were banished in national disgrace, a young Milwaukee lawyer named Ray Cannon, who afterward served a couple of hitches in congress, took over their case and sent me the salary figures.

They were indecently stingy, for old Charlie Comiskey, the noblest Roman of them all, as he was called in print in Chicago, was one kind of man to the public but a very different man to the help.

I haven't the figures just now, but for all his display of hospitality to his barfly friends Charlie thought $3,000 was enough to pay a star member of the greatest ball team ever assembled. He would roll out a keg of venerable whisky, as smooth as honey, and set a long board of free lunch at a cost of a hundred dollars or so, and people would get to singing harmony and toasting the old Roman with never a thought of the salary standards of the greatest ball club ever assembled.

The sports writers saw only the hosty side of old Charlie, and, anyway, in those days many of the players were ignoramuses or illiterates, and most people thought they were lucky to be paid at all for playing a game. The players got almost no hearing, and some of them thought the writers silenced their grievances in print for free drinks.

Even after the expose, which was said to have broken Charlie's health, although fair wear and tear could have accounted for that, the noblest Roman of them all was incredibly callous and ungrateful to a scrawny little pitcher, named Dick Kerr, who won two games in the fake series with most of his own team against him.

Kerr wanted a little raise. Comiskey wouldn't give it to him, and when Kerr dropped around to talk business as the club passed through Texas on the training trip Charlie's son, Lou, wouldn't talk to him. So Kerr retired and lost his career merely because he asked for a raise. That was what loyalty to the noblest Roman got him.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Peace, it's wonderful.

The peace of Dietrich, Marlay-nah the happy, the gay, the working gal.

After a year and a half, she's making another picture. She's wearing her honey-gold hair curled and frizzy as well as covered with its usual gold dust for sheen. She's wearing a short, spangled pale green frock, with spangles in her hair, spangles on her slippers. She's Frenchy, the dance hall queen with the heart of gold. At least it turns out to be a heart of gold, if they stick to the story outline they have for "Destry Rides Again."

Marlene isn't the girl she used to be. If she was ever happy on the sets at other places, she didn't show it. She was the aloof one. But a year and a half on the sidelines, a trip to France to make a movie that wasn't made, a chance at a role that's like her first hit in "The Blue Angel"—these have changed her. Or it might be that she's showing appreciation for her new American citizenship, for the chance to be in it all over here and away from it all over there.

Vernon Keys, the assistant diricter to George Marshall, wears a fancy whistle around his neck. On its face is a tiny watch, and engraved on the reverse, "I come." Gift from Mar-lay-nah. Gift with a chuckle in it. When Vernon blows, Mar-lay-nah comes running.

This new Dietrich is laboring on a set that is more than vaguely familiar. It is a saloon and dancehall of the wild west of the 1880's. It has the inevitable long bar (presided over this time by Billy Gilbert, the rotund sneezer), the usual abbreviated stage, on which Mar-lay-nah will throat through some western yippee tunes, and the customary games of chance.

Almost equally inevitable is Brian Donlevy, in the role of the sideburned, suave guy with the heart of brass. (This role is getting to be a habit with Brian—bet he could play it in his sleep.)

But there's one thing different: a fellow named James Stewart. For more than a year this picture has been on the Stewart schedule. Now that he's making it, his box-office value is sure to have been stepped up by the yet unreleased "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," the Frank Capra film.

A quieter, less pugnacious cowboy hero you couldn't imagine. The lad of the underslung lip and bewildered yokel air is going to be the most distinctive western hero of the films, who fights with words and calms things down, when possible, by appeals to reason. But when he gets aroused, wow! (With Stewart in the role, the thought occurred that "Destry Rides Again" might be an attempt to satirize the familiar rootin-tootin theme, but Director Marshall says no, it's going to be played straight.)

But there's one thing mysterious about this picture, for all that. A careful reading of the synopsis reveals that Stewart, who does the riding, is tagged Tom Blake—and nowhere in action appears a character named Destry. Destry, it seems, rode again—but right out of the screenplay.

Responsible For Home Tragedy

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Women pay the penalty of having "watch-spring nerves" in being more susceptible to alcohol than men.

An interesting paper in a current magazine, by Walter Lamb Newton, says that alcohol gets through a woman's nerve insulation faster and more devastatingly than it does with men, because men's nerves are better insulated.

The same paper speaks of the menace of women being urged by their husbands to drink for sociability, which fits in with a pretty unhappy letter in this morning's mail:

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"During the past two years, I've had plenty of time to regret bitterly that I urged my young wife to have a drink with me for companionship.

"She is my second wife, and eighteen years younger than I. I've never cared for drink, except when I came home from the office after a day's work, a highball or a cocktail just before dinner seemed to top off the day to perfection. My first wife usually prepared these little treats for me, and when I married again, it just seemed like taking up a happy marriage where a former happy marriage had left off.

"But my girl wife hated the taste of liquor, and I used to persuade her to take a sip out of my glass, and then have an 'itty bitty' drink of her own. This was the beginning of what is now a dreadful domestic tragedy.

"I have sent my two-year old son to my old mother because his mother is no longer capable of taking care of him. In your vast experience, Miss Fairfax, do you know of a good cure? The cure, I understand, charges eight hundred dollars for a patient, and this is more than I can afford. If you know of a reliable cure for less, will you be good enough to send me some information and tell me with whom I can get in touch?

"GUILTILY RESPONSIBLE."

I have sent this correspondent some literature about a cure well known in this country. Whether it will prove to be successful in the case of his wife, I have no means of knowing. But here's hoping for the best. And I appeal to the gentlemen of the jury, among my readers, if they have a wife who dislikes the taste of liquor, why not let her keep on with this particular dislike? "Sociability" should not be carried to the extent of wrecking someone's else stability and happiness.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Poor darling!" she cooed. "You know I didn't mean a syllable of it. And I'm a beast to bother you before you're fully recovered, or, indeed, at any time. But she did make me so-o-o ma-a-d."

"I know, darling," he said, smiling at her pretty affectation. "It's all right. Let's forget about it and listen to what Aunt Madge has to tell us about Father."

"Go ahead, Auntie Madge!" she adjured me. "Shoot the works."

"Your father wants to start rehearsals of my play right away," I told them.

"Oh!" Mary exclaimed chokingly "That must mean he's going to drop me because I can't make New York for rehearsals. Well! I'll show him. I don't care if 500 Grandpa Spencers say I can't go, and 1,000 Jack Leslie's are waiting round the corner to grab me. I'm going to New York for rehearsals. I'm going, I tell you. I'm going!"

"Not so loud, Mary!" I adjured her, "or your father-in-law will hear you over at the hotel and change the very accommodating, if bizarre, plan he has made for the rehearsals."

She stopped, in mid-air as it were, and stared at me.

"What do you mean?" she asked, and I told her, and Noel as well, about Philip Veritzen's proposal to bring the cast of the play to the farm house for rehearsals.

"But you'll be here every minute, won't you, Auntie Madge?" she asked, and I hastened to reassure her patent fears.

"I already have told your father-in-law that there will be no rehearsals for you unless I am present."

"When will the rehearsals start?" Noel asked.

"Not for three days at least," I answered. "The Underwoods and I have to go up to New York for that interval."

"Then," Mary said fearfully, "I'll have no more rehearsals with you before the big rehearsal is called."

"Oh! yes, you will," I told her, "for I had made up my mind on that point since I had talked to Philip Veritzen. "I told him that I would call him as soon as I returned, but I am going to stretch that promise until it cracks. He will have no way of knowing of my return, and I shall not telephone him until I have gone over the play with you as many times as we think necessary."

"You darling!" she breathed. "Now, is there anything you want me to do while you're gone?"

"You might run over the role once each day with Noel in the stilted fashion your father-in-law taught you," I said. "Then you will not only keep letter-perfect, but will be sure that you haven't forgotten his rendition for the first exhibition we shall put on. But don't dare even think of the real interpretation we have been giving until I come back. You're ready for the big trial in that, and I don't want you to spoil it."

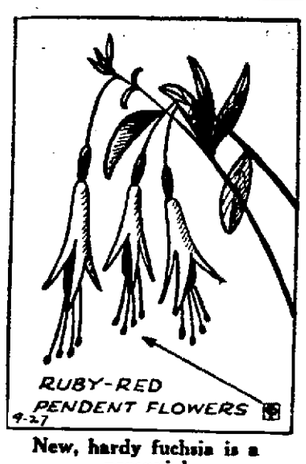
Today's Garden-Graph



New, hardy fuchsia is a perennial

Few plants are more generally useful than fuchsias. Their profuseness in flowering as well as the long duration of their flowering period have made them ideal plants for the garden and home.

A hardy fuchsia has recently been introduced—and being really hardy it makes the fuchsia a perennial. This is the Fuchsia Magellonica. It blooms all through the summer out of doors until frost interferes, but if the plants are brought indoors before frost comes they will continue to bloom. The flowers of this fuchsia are long and slender, as illustrated in the Garden-Graph, and are dainty in appearance. Their color scheme is ruby red for the calyx, with blue petals.

These new fuchsias grow well in sun or shade, but are especially adapted for shady locations.

ONTARIO—R. H. DeVore was surprised with a dinner party on his birthday yesterday evening at his home in Ontario. The 12 guests in attendance spent a social evening and presented Mr. DeVore with many gifts.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, October 5.

ALTHOUGH this may be a very lively day, according to the lunar transits, there also are loopholes for some rather tricky or dubious complications. This is more ominous in personal adventures; there would be more success in group action or in co-operation with others. A main danger is in the misuse of funds, either in personal extravagances or in an unjustified outlay in co-operation with others. Such expenditure might relate to some sort of romantic or sentimental indulgence. In any case be advised by elders and be discreet.

Those whose birthday it is may have a happy and profitable year if they will take the mature advice of elders when peculiar complications arise, or when extravagance or enthusiasms inveigle them into tight and menacing entanglements. These may relate to romantic situations in which there seem to be financial involvements. Frivolities and luxurious tastes may be at the root of these anxieties.

A child born on this day may be active, industrious and talented, with much stability of character despite tendencies to extravagance, luxuries and excessive generosity. Youthful training in thrift might be beneficial.

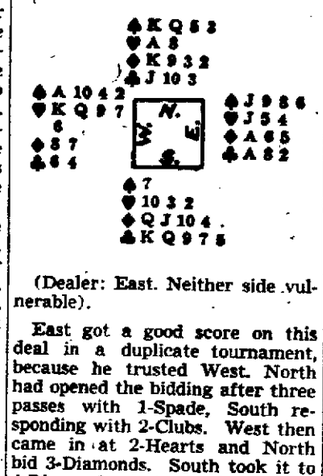
"The Authority on Authorities"

A GOOD WAY TO FEEL

IT IS FINE to know that you have a trustworthy partner, so that you may have a feeling of dependence upon him. When the opponents reach a high stage in the bidding and you have a fair amount of high card strength, you can then make a business double with confidence, counting on his having some defensive ability, if he has overcalled on the first round.



(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable).

East got a good score on this deal in a duplicate tournament, because he trusted West. North had opened the bidding after three passes with 1-Spade, South responding with 2-Clubs. West then came in at 2-Hearts and North bid 3-Diamonds. South took it to 4-Diamonds, but North did not like the idea of going farther, so passed.

East, with his two aces and two jacks, had not said a word up to this time, but now he doubled. He reasoned that a partner coming in at the range of two on his first chance to overcall, after both opponents had bid, would be pretty likely to have some worthwhile defensive material. He did have, just enough, and the contract was beaten by taking one trick, in each suit.

Tomorrow's Problem.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

MANSFIELD SOROSIS HAS INITIAL SESSION

Study of Australia Begun by Organization; Memorial Book Presented; Club Will Have Dinner With Mrs. Carl Heim.

WITH study programs for the season well under way by now regularly scheduled activities consume considerable time. Yesterday the first session of the Mansfield Sorosis was held at the Women's Club with Mrs. H. L. Creveling entertaining. Greetings from Mrs. W. R. King, president who succeeded Mrs. John Angle to office, were received by the 25 members present.

The opening paper was "Australian Map Talk" by Miss Ruth Culbertson who told of the climate, cities, harbors, and the gold mining, grazing and agricultural pursuits of the continent. Speaking of New Zealand she said, "It is the Switzerland of the South Seas."

Mrs William J. Bishop then spoke on "The Tung Tree of the South," telling of the scientific experiments which have proven that this Chinese tree can be grown profitably in the south and along the Gulf coast of the United States. There are now 175,000 acres producing the trees the nut of which is used to make an oil for varnish, paints and lacquers.

The club gave "A Song of Years" to the memorial shelf of the Mansfield Public library as a memorial to Miss Mary Lampert. Miss Bertha Ruess made the presentation speech explaining that the club will continue these book gifts which will be reviewed at the meetings from time to time.

Mrs. A. E. Courtney, program chairman, outlined the year's study, and Mrs. Ambrose Middleton was named delegate to the Middle North district convention at Fremont.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Carl Heim, South Boulevards, when a 6 o'clock dinner is served on Oct. 17.

Several Dinner Meetings Held By Church Organizations

MANY have commented that Mansfield is a city of churches, and the interest of women's groups in religious organizations indicates great activity. Yesterday a number of classes and societies conducted sessions among them the Senior World Wide guild of the Park Avenue Baptist church.

A covered-dish dinner was served to 20 members and guests at a long table decorated with the guild colors of blue and white. Tiny blue bud vases containing rose buds and blue tapers in white holders carried out the theme.

Miss Williamine Hoffman, accompanied by Mrs. Wayne Williams, led group singing, and Miss Edna Boswell, program chairman, introduced Mrs W. E. Wygant, guest speaker, who reviewed "Bells" by Colman.

Program books, designed by Miss Boswell, were given as favors Mrs. Willard Conn and Mrs. John Pocock were guests. Members of the committee on arrangements were Miss Boswell, Mrs. Lawrence Whisler, who conducted the business meeting, Mrs. Clare Casto and Miss Hoffman.

A 6 o'clock covered-dish dinner and Pollyanna party was attended last night by 55 members of the Rain or Shine class of the South Main Street Evangelical church in the church parlors. Mrs. C M. Hunter conducted the short business meeting and Mrs Grace Campbell led the devotions

Mrs. T. T. Haas, Wooster, a former teacher and member of the class spoke, and a letter was read from Mrs. Anna McGuire, San Diego, Calif., a former member of the class. Readings were given by Rolland Kern, and a duet was sung by Mrs. Della Berry and Mrs. F. O. Haldeman. The Pollyanna gifts were exchanged at the close of the meeting. The next session will be Nov. 7 at the church

There were 19 members of the Pastors' Aid society of St. Mark's Lutheran church present at the home of Mrs. Charles House, Springmill street yesterday when Mrs. Samuel Berger conducted a business session. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Carrie Cairns, Bowman street. Plans were made for a rummage sale to be held Oct. 18 and 19.

There were 35 members and five guests in attendance at a meeting of the Helpers circle of the First Lutheran church yesterday evening in the Parish house. Mrs. Fred Herbrand was in charge of the devotional readings.

During the program, Miss Helen Dickson sang two vocal solos, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Clayton D. Bell. Miss Hester Robinson then gave a talk on travels in Mexico, which she illustrated with moving picture.

The hostesses, Miss Roma Prosser, Miss Mabel Charles, Miss Nell Kern, Mrs. Ida Fighter and Mrs. Helen Huffman, served refreshments at the close of the evening. The next meeting of the circle will be held at the parish house on Nov. 7.

Mrs. Birdie Finney was in charge of the business and devotions yesterday afternoon during a meeting of Class 13 of the First Lutheran church at the parish house. There were 20 members in attendance at the session, for which Mrs. Frank Hoffman, Mrs. Charlotte L. Walters and Mrs. Clementine Myers served as hostesses. The class will meet again at the parish house on Nov. 7

The hostess served refreshments at the close of the games. Mrs. Scrafield will entertain the group at her home on Johns avenue on Oct. 17.

Informally Speaking...

By MARIANNE

NOW that the first flashes of newly named colors (moss green, dragon fly blue, claret and clay dust) are fading into the fashion background, black seems to be leading the parade. . . . If you're looking for a dressy frock, how about one of black velvet, fashioned with a short tunic and crisp white lace trim on the neck and sleeves . . . While shopping yesterday, I saw two attractive frocks of black moire—one was made with a fitted bodice that tied with a bustle bow at the back of the waist, and the only trim was narrow black velvet piping—the other moire frock was styled with a ruffled peplin, and the basque waist laced up the front with narrow black velvet ribbons.

Marianne

Just in case you find solid black too severe, you'll be pleased to know that many of the downtown stores are showing styles combined with bright colors to relieve the severity. . . . A rather dashing velveteen frock of red and black check was made shirtwaist style with red studs closing the front of the blouse, full, wrist-length sleeves and a flaring swing skirt. . . . Another checked dress, shirtwaist style, was of black and gold wool with a peaked hood attached to the back of the neckline.

If, however, you can't wear black—you might like a gay little dance frock of blue velveteen that I saw yesterday.—A different effect was created in the bodice, which was styled like a vestee with narrow quilting, white lace collar and cuffs and a narrow ribbon bow closing the neck. . . . Moss green is pretty—especially when combined with brown, and one attractive dress I saw was fashioned with long sleeves, and front fullness in the skirt fell from a wide brown velvet girdle. . . . Speaking of brown, one store is now showing a silk crepe frock with brown beaver trim on the pockets and in a bow at the neck.

FASHIONABLE FORMALS: Regardless of whether you're a beautiful blond with bright blue eyes or an attractive brunet with dark brown eyes, you'll be sure to delight your dancing partner if you're wearing the pretty formal gown I saw yesterday. . . . It was of rose-coral taffeta fashioned with short puffed sleeves and a ruffled bustle extending from the back of the waist to the hem of the gown. . . . Or, if you want to seem more sophisticated than demure, you'll like a formal of black moire taffeta made with a low cut decolletage and a fitted tunic brightened with a touch of red at the waist.

Is keeping makeup on all during the day an ever-present problem with you? Then you'll be glad to know that an American woman cosmetologist has just perfected an all-day foundation creme, which not only holds powder on longer, but also covers blemishes—it can be purchased in such flattering shades as natural, rachel and rose rachel.

* * *

ONE of the stores is now showing a new perfume, which is certain to complement any fall ensemble . . . "Tzigane" is the name . . . it comes from France in an attractive frosted bottle packaged in a miniature violin case of lush red satin trimmed with gold—all because "tzigane" has something to do with Gypsies, their music and their dancing.

* * *

AN ADDED ATTRACTION: There's a beautiful new perfume tray being shown now—it's an oval mirror with pretty crystal handles—and will certainly set off your perfume bottles (be they few or many) to the very best advantage.

* * *

Note: The styles described above are available in Mansfield shops. You can learn where they may be obtained if you will telephone Marianne at The News-Journal between 1 and 2:30 p. m.—Canal 4251.

Allentown, Pa., Fan First Waiter-In-Line.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Sherwood Charles Bower, 27, a migratory worker from Allentown, Pa., turned up today as the traditional No. 1 waiter-in-line for bleacher seats for the world series. He took up the vigil at noon yesterday but towards evening police ordered him to leave for the night, promising him the coveted No. 1 spot this morning.

Over-Confidence May Spill Yankees In Series

Fight for National League In World Series Games

Top row, left to right, Scarsella, Bongiovanni, Myers, Frey, Goodman, Joost, Werber and Vander Meer. Second row, left to right, Gamble, Lombardi, Grissom, Berger, Walters, McCormick, Craft, Derringer and Trainer Rohde. Bottom row, left to right, Riggs, Moore, Bordagaray, Coach Gowdy, Manager McKechnie, Coach Wilson, Hershberger, Thompson and Club Secretary Paul. These are the men who brought Cincinnati that city's first pennant in 20 years.

IN THE RUHL BOOK

By OSCAR RUHL
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

THIS year's World's Series does not come to Cincinnati until Saturday, but already the classic is a disappointment. . . .to about 253,647 Cincinnatians.

They're the ones who paid their buck-tens to help the Reds set something like a new attendance record of 980,000 in a 460,000-population town.

Now these faithful have been shunned. The cost of tickets will prohibit many of the loyal supporters to see the games, the ducats costing about five times as much as regular season admissions.

And many of those who could afford to pay the price can't obtain seats, and were told not to write for reservations a day after the sale opened.

The series is not an average man's game. It's a big promotion of big dough for league and players paid for by those who can afford it and are fortunate to hold an inside track to the ticket window.

The regular fan is the "forgotten man" when World's Series time comes along.

THIS COLUMN'S SERIES CHOICE: Cincinnati. . . .not that the Reds are superior (because we don't think they are), but the law of averages, with a little help from "Deacon Bill's" boys, will turn the trick. Then the Reds have Derringer and Walters, and it is possible for two pitchers to win a series. Don't say we didn't tell you.

* * *

THE Cincinnati games will not pay the dividends to home town merchants as is generally the case in a World's Series city.

Lack of seating accommodations at Crosley field held the distribution of tickets to a small sector.

Cincinnatians and neighborhood fans obtained the bulk of ducats—and yet not enough to supply the demand—and their presence at the games will not pour the money into the merchants' coffers as it would if the fans came from a distance

Cincinnati hotel and restaurant operators are already complaining that virtually all of the seats will be occupied by persons who can do their eating and sleeping at home.

Headline of the Day.
CINCINNATI: "Eastern writer, slightly prejudiced, picks Yanks to win."

LEAVING Joe DiMaggio out of it, the New York and Cincinnati outfits balance up fairly even. Comparing the gardens with the Yankee "deadpan" in the centerfield, New York covers the Reds like mushrooms smother a steak.

In keeping with the general baseball hysteria in Cincinnati, General hospital physician there named a foundling baby girl "Miss Pennant." The infant was found in a women's washroom in a Cinty building.

GAYLE TALBOT, Associated Press: "They (the Reds) said down in Tampa last spring that they would win, and I believed them. Now, when they say they are going to make the Yankees stretch themselves to win, I believe that, too."

* * *

Joe McCarthy and Bill McKechnie, World's Series rivals, are probably the two most famous examples of baseball's nasty little habit of rewarding pennant-winning managers by firing them. Both know all about that one. Marse Joe booted the Cubs home in '29 and was politely kicked out the following year. The good Deacon won with Pittsburgh in '25 and got the little pink slip from the Pirates in June. He repeated in 1928, and was out of a job again next year.

* * *

Lonnie Frey's improvement at second base was one of the major reasons why the Reds were able to finish on top in the National race. But before he joined the Reds, Lonnie was definitely a problem child for the Dodgers. Remember the afternoon while with the Dodgers that Lonnie let two or three ground balls roll through his legs like an ambulance going through a red light? And Van Mungo, whose temperament is not angelic at best, slammed his glove down on the mound and refused to go on pitching until they took Lonnie out.

Yessiree, it looks like a great series. . . .and say, boy, how badly did the Reds beat the Yankees today?

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY

Shooting even par, Denny Shute won Ohio Open title in Columbus . . . Two errors in 10th gave Crowder and Browns 3 to 2 victory over Indians . . . Ohio State was being favored for Wittenberg in first game.

'Tough Team,' Says Snyder of New Philly

Tyger Coach Asserts Mansfield Must Be at Peak for Saturday's Game.

"That Massillon whipping hasn't discouraged the boys," Coach Paul Snyder informed The News-Journal today.

"We'll probably not win all the games remaining on our schedule," the Mansfield high school grid mentor added, "but the boys are showing improvement right along."

Working hard in drills this week, Snyder hoped that the Tygers would reach near peak form for Saturday's encounter with the undefeated Quakers in New Philadelphia.

"One of the toughest ball clubs I've seen this year," Snyder says of the New Philly club.

Snyder had occasion to watch the Quakers in action at Lorain Friday night and what he saw convinced him of the team's strength, despite the fact that the New Philly outfit was held to a tie by Lorain.

The stalemate is hardly a mar on the Quakers' record. New Philly was not accorded a chance to trouble Lorain, again a northern Ohio power. But the Quakers gave Lorain all the football it will probably care to see in one night this season.

New Philadelphia is not unusually large, Snyder says, but the team has power and speed. In Reese, a 200-pound fullback, the Quakers boast one of the finest backs in the state, according to the Tyger tactician.

In preparation for this game, Snyder is attempting to strengthen the Tygers' pass defense as it is this department which is expected to be severely tested.

New Philadelphia boasts of three expert passers, one of whom is Reese.

Mansfield whipped Cambridge, 26 to 0, last Saturday, and turned in the triumph with ease. A rain-soaked field helped to hold down the score, but no more than penalties.

Snyder continues to be impressed by the performances of Martin Henke, who held down an end against Cambridge. He has virtually cinched a steady job in the Mansfield line.

Bellville-Loudonville Game Set for Thursday.

The annual Bellville-Loudonville high school football game will be played in Loudonville Thursday instead of Friday as a feature of the free fair. The game is called for 2:15 p. m.

Coach Royd Hodge's Blue Jays of Bellville will be seeking their fourth straight victory in this game.

Harry's Harriers Lose First Meet

Coach Harry Mehock's Mansfield high school harriers bowed to Newark, 16 to 39, in their opening cross country meet of the season in Newark yesterday. The first Mansfield runner to finish was Yarman, who came in fifth.

Glover of Newark won the race in 10 minutes, 30 seconds, and he was followed by Teammates Busby, Myers and Hull in that order. Trailing Yarman were Milligan of Newark and Burkholder, Sawhill, Dusty and Woodbury of Mansfield.

Daffy Returns to Big Show

Young Dean Drafted From Columbus by Giants.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Paul Dean will get another chance in baseball's big top.

Released to Columbus in the American Association in midsummer by the St. Louis Cardinals, "Daffy" of the famous "Dizzy and Daffy" pitching combination came back last night in the draft—this time to the New York Giants.

Only 13 players were called up in the conscription, indicating a dearth of material in the minors. The St. Louis Browns, getting first choice, took Shortstop Alan Strange of Seattle, who had tried out with them before. The Phillies obtained Pitchers Si Johnson of Rochester and Clyde Smoll of Atlanta.

The Athletics chose Elon Hogsett, veteran American league hurler who was with Minneapolis this season, and Pitcher John Babich of Kansas City. The Boston Bees named Pitcher Nick Strincevich of Newark and Washington took Pitcher Paul Gehrman of Birmingham.

Pittsburgh got Dick Lanahan, a Chattanooga pitcher; Detroit, Pitcher Tom Seats of Sacramento; the White Sox, Catcher Tom Turner of Houston; the Cubs, Pitcher Jake Mooty of Syracuse, and the Reds, Infielder Russ Bevell of New Orleans.

Tribe Loses Second Sacker

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—A startling scarcity of talent as well as in increasing number of agreements with manor league clubs was indicated today by the annual major league baseball draft, one of the smallest in history. It elevated only 13 players to the big time.

A major league club cannot draft a player from a club with which it has a working agreement, although the Cleveland Indians tried such a maneuver that was spiked by Commissioner Kenesaw Landis at the annual draft meeting last night.

When Cleveland's turn to pick a player from the eligible list came last night, C. C. Slapnicka named second baseman Russell Bevel of the New Orleans Pelicans in the Southern Association.

Landis interrupted and asked whether Cleveland had an agreement with New Orleans. When informed that such was the case, he ruled the club in eligible to take Bevel via the draft, and he was acquired by the Cincinnati Reds.

50,000 to See Opener Today

Derringer, Ruffing Slated to Work on Mound for Rival Clubs In New York Inaugural.

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK—(AP)—The biggest show baseball has to offer, the time-honored world series, opens under bleak skies at Yankee stadium today, and it might prove to be a dinger before the New York Yankees and the Cincinnati Reds finish with each other.

They were to go at it at 1:30 p. m. (EST) before a crowd of probably 50,000, with Paul Derringer pitching for Cincinnati and Rufus (Red) Ruffing whizzing his fast one through for the complacent Yankees. Out in Cincinnati at that hour, hearts will stand still and traffic will come to a virtual stop.

Few teams in history have held the affections of their home town like the Reds do today. That gives Manager Bill McKechnie's boys a little something extra for which to fight. They are a "loose," confident crew, full of their proved ability and in no wise awed by the task they face.

The Yankees go into the series a trifle too satisfied with themselves. Three straight world championships have made their attitude almost careless, like a man preparing to shoot a few rabbits with a double-barreled gun. Probably they have been soothed, too, by the fact the bookmakers are offering 3 to 1 odds against the Reds.

But it might back-fire on them. The Reds are a good ball club, with a couple of fine pitchers in Derringer and Bucky Walters, a nice batting punch and really exceptional team spirit. They pulled themselves together to fight off the recent sensational bid of the St. Louis Cardinals. A club like that could beat even the Yankees in a four-of-seven series.

In a complete season, if they were playing in the same league, the Yankees doubtless would pull away from the Reds, just like they did from the Boston Red Sox. The Yankees are a "solid" club, good in every position and great in some. But it has not been long since the Red Sox came here and swept a five-game series with Joe McCarthy's wonder boys. So it can be done.

Without much doubt, the Reds are firing their best gun in Derringer today. For one thing, he is the only man in their lineup who ever played in a world series. As a big league freshman, he pitched for the St. Louis Cards against the Philadelphia Athletics in the 1931 series, in which "Pepper" Martin ran wild.

Derringer is a smarter, better pitcher than he was in those days. His control is possibly the finest in baseball. He pitched three innings against the stars of the Yankee team in the last all-star game without allowing one of them a hit. So he goes into today's game dead-certain he can stop the champions.

His mound opposition is formidable. Ruffing decided in yesterday's brief, chilly workout that his arm was all right, which means the Cincinnati batters today will face one of the game's great money pitchers. Like Derringer, Ruffing is at his imposing best with men on base. It should be a fine duel.

They play here today and tomorrow, weather permitting.

Should the Reds win today, it would not be surprising to see 70,000 in the big stadium tomorrow, for the greatest tonic baseball could receive right now would be a few hidings administered to the Yanks. The public is a little weary of watching the American league bullies kick their rivals around.

LOUISVILLE GAINS EDGE IN LITTLE WORLD SERIES

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — (INS) — Louisville's Colonels of the American Association held a 3-2 edge in games today over Rochester of the International League in the little world series. The Colonels jumped into the lead in the four-out-of-seven series last night, winning 5 to 2 behind the eight-hit pitching of Jim Weaver.

Immediately after the game, both teams headed for Rochester, N. Y., where the remaining game or games will be played.

Donnellon, 655, High In Tire Pin League

Mrs. Sophia Meder Sets New Women's Season Record With 580 In Mixed Doubles Loop.

BILL DONNELLAN had his sights pretty well regulated on the "1-3" pocket last night as he led the individual scoring in the Mansfield Tire league with a 655 count at the Meder alleys.

Bowling with the Maintenance club, Donnellan started out with a 194, jumped to 246 and finished with a 215.

"Buck" Teeters of the Mill Room came through with the only other 600 bowled in the league when he put together games of 179, 211 and 221 for 611. Incidentally, Teeter's team swept the match with Donnellan's club.

A new women's record for the season was established by Mrs. Sophia Meder in the Mixed Doubles league when she reached the 580 figures. She accumulated games of 180, 198 and 202. France led the men with a 608 count.

THEATERS

"The Under-Pup."

Really fine music is a feature of "The Under-Pup," at the Ohio, which introduces 11-year-old Gloria Jean to screen audiences. The girl can sing and Pasternak, who sponsored Deanna Durbin's career, wisely chose only the best music. She sings "Annie Laurie," Mozart's "Shepherd's Lullaby," John Philip Sousa's first march called "High School Cadets" and the "Choir Song" by Reinke. The story is that of a small girl who overcomes a lot of obstacles at a snooty girls' school. The cast includes Nan Grey, Robert Cummings, Margaret Lindsay, Paul Cavanaugh and C. Aubrey Smith.

Handful of Murder.

When Charlie Chan steps off a Pacific Clipper at San Francisco he runs smack into a series of crimes and murders that seem to be unsolvable. Each time that he finds a clue and follows it up he finds a new murder. A fake medium, a mind reader and a magician are mixed up in the plot. Much of the action takes place at the San Francisco fair, hence the name "Charlie Chan at Treasure Island." A second feature at the Madison is "No Place To Go" with Fred Stone, Gloria Dickson and Dennis Morgan.

Baskerville Hound.

The forerunner of all fictional detectives was Sherlock Holmes, and this greatest of all sleuths comes to the screen of the Ritz in "The Hound of The Baskervilles." On a bleak moor in Devonshire is the ancestral home of the Baskervilles, which is haunted by the ghost of a great, fearsome hound which kills the members of the family one by one. Holmes comes face to face with the ghostly hound in a stirring climax. Sharing honors on the Ritz bill is Gene Autrey in "Mountain Rhythm."

Political Tangle.

Judith Allen, who gained too much of the wrong kind of publicity through her marriage and divorce from prizefighter Jack Doyle, comes back to the screen in "Beware of Ladies," a Republic film in which she is featured with Donald Cook. It is the story of a young politician, opposed by the underworld, and a young and pretty girl assigned him as his press agent and secretary. "Murder Is News" is the second feature and has Iris Meredith and John Gallaudet at the head of the cast. Both pictures are at the Park.

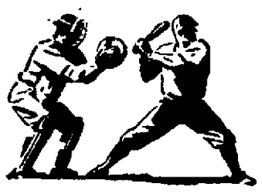
Just In The Movies.

A girl reporter and an adventurous editor go out after a story about a modern Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde "dead 18 years" in "News Is Made at Night." As is the custom in the movies, though not so often in real life, the girl wins not only a by-line on the story but a proposal from the boss as well. Preston Foster is the editor and Lynn Bari the reporter. James Cagney and Rosemary Lane in "The Oklahoma Kid" is the other attraction at the Majestic.



A "Series" Every Month?

Do you have a series of bills or installment payments to meet each month? If so, you can borrow here to take care of them, then the "series" will be over. You'll be the winner, with only one monthly payment to make instead of several.

Examine this table. It shows that $4.46 a month repays everything on a $100 loan in 30 months. The faster you pay, the less the total cost. These payments are calculated at Household's new reduced rates of 2% monthly on balances up to $300 and 6% yearly on balances over $300 to $500. These rates are less than legal maximum, and are the same to everyone—one price to all. Only borrowers sign—no endorsers on any loan. No credit inquiries of friends or relatives.

METAL SHARES LIFT LEADERS IN MILD RALLY

Steels, Coppers Pace Upturn as Traders Hear Reports of Higher Scrap Sales.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Steel and copper shares stepped to the front to give the stock market leadership for a rally attempted today.

Gains of fractions to around a point were recorded for the metal shares but the list generally was slow to follow the move.

Many traders stayed out of the market to await the Hitler speech scheduled for later this week.

Heading the upturn were Bethlehem, U. S. Steel, Anaconda, Phelps Dodge and American Smelting. Sears Roebuck and American Telephone were among the gainers. Small losses showed in General Motors, General Electric, New York Central and Douglas Aircraft.

Steel business was a focus of Wall Street interest as reports from Pittsburgh said heavy melting scrap had sold at $24.50 a ton, topping the 1937 peak of $24 a ton.

The "Iron Age" said "an advance in prices of steel and pig iron is clearly indicated if war continues."

The rise in steel production the last few weeks, the publication added, has been the most rapid in history of the industry for so brief a period.

The powerful autumn industrial upturn raised the consumption of electricity to a new peak.

Reports from individual roads indicated rail loadings last week expanded further, coming close to the 1937 high point.

For Misery from HEAD COLDS use MENTHOLATUM

Link them together in your mind!

ARE you at the mercy of a sniffly, sneezy, smothery head cold? Why endure so much misery? A little Mentholatum applied in each nostril will soothe the irritated nasal membranes, check the sneezing, relieve the stuffiness, and help you to breathe more easily.

Also rub Mentholatum vigorously on the chest and back to improve the local blood circulation and thus gain extra help in relieving cold discomforts. Rub it on the forehead and temples to allay headache and neuralgia due to colds.

MOVE TO CURB DOUBLE PARKING

Police Warn Truck Drivers in Campaign to Relieve Traffic Congestion.

it will not be tolerated any further," Bates said.

Pointing out that traffic congestion was "bad enough" without truck drivers making it worse, he added that he had recommended more than a year ago that police be given the power to institute "no-turn" traffic at busy intersections during rush periods.

He said he had made the request to council's street committee and that the request had been rejected. The request was not made officially to council, however.

With "no-turn" regulations in force during rush periods at downtown intersections, traffic would be speeded up and would relieve the congestion that slows automobiles to a snail's pace, especially on Saturdays, police contend.

Bates said he also had recommended that unloading zones be established throughout the business district so that trucks could pull to the curb instead of double parking but that the request was also turned down.

DECLARES ARMS SALE 'REACHES OUT FOR WAR'

Vandenberg Warns of Dangers of 'Unneutral' Act Should U. S. Shift Neutrality.

of the administration bill opened the second day of senate debate debate was suspended yesterday on neutrality law revision. The because of the death of Senator Logan (D., Ky.)

Sees It Peace Key.

Connally urged adoption of the proposal prohibiting American ships from carrying any materials to warring nations as a means of keeping the United States at peace.

"Germany did not hesitate to sink our ships before we entered the World war and were at peace," he said. "She will not hesitate to do so now."

Vandenberg asserted that the arms embargo had become the "symbol" of American neutrality. He contended that its repeal would be accepted by the world as indicating that America was taking sides in the European conflict.

Although he said he favored re-enactment of the expired "cash and carry" sections of the present law, Vandenberg declared that attempts to sell arms on that basis would bring serious consequences. The expired sections covered only materials other than arms.

He said that belligerents would be likely to sink "in our front-yard" the ships of other belligerents which came here to get arms. Any boom caused by such sales, he added, would be likely to have disastrous after effects on American economy.

He asserted that belligerents might not long be able to pay cash for munitions here.

"We may start with 'cash and carry' on munitions, which sounds rather neighborly and profitable and inoffensive," he said. "It almost puts peace on a chain-store basis. But alien 'cash' is limited. One day it runs out."

The next steps, Vandenberg said, would be "credit and carry" and then "loans and carry."

Vandenberg said that the European war was not our war, that this country should have learned from experience that there was little it could do to prevent the recurrence of conflict on that continent.

He scoffed at arguments that this country would be "next" if collectivism wins in Europe.

"There will not be any 'next' for any participants in this world war if it runs on to a conclusive military end because it will be so decimating and exhaustive for all concerned.

"But if there were to be a 'next' and—conceding the improbabilities for the sake of argument—it should be us, I submit that we were well advised to husband all our resources and perfect our own unassailable defense, here upon this side of 3,000 miles of sea, rather than to dissipate our strength and our vitality in advance."

Connally took the floor shortly after noon and his opponent for the day, Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) listened intently. Retention of the embargo, he argued, permits the "outlaw" nation to arm in peacetime and strike out against a defenseless victim secure in the knowledge that the U. S. arms embargo will clamp down and prevent the victim from buying arms to defend himself."

"If we desire peace," Connally summed. "If our compelling motive is to remain aloof from the horrors and terrors and miseries of the war now ravaging Europe, if it is our desire that American boys remain upon their own soil to pursue their normal occupations and callings, rather than to be called to the battlefield to shed their blood and perhaps to die, we should adopt the joint resolution now pending (the embargo repeal bill) instead of retaining the present embargo act."

Denying claims of the opposition forces that repeal would bring trouble, Connally accused them of "baseless statements" and said they were "trying to frighten the people."

Connally argued that the existing law prohibits arms sales but permitted American boats to haul other commodities sold to belligerents may bring war to the United States. He cited a long list of German submarine attacks on neutral shipping during the World war, and pointed out that most of these attacks fell upon vessels carrying non-war commodities.

"What Germany did in the World war she will do in this war," Connally warned. "What she did in the World war she is already doing now. Unrestricted submarine warfare on all neutral commerce has already begun. Germany did not hesitate to sink our ships before we entered the World war and were at peace. She will not hesitate to do so now."

Returning to his challenging defense to the arms embargo repeal bill with its provisions prohibiting American vessels from hauling any cargoes to belligerents, the Texan drew this conclusion:

"The ending resolution makes it wholly improbable that any American vessel or American cargo will be sunk, since by law no such ship and no such cargo can move to any nation at war . . ."

The only safe alternative to the embargo repeal and cash-and-carry law, so-called, Connally argued, would be a blanket embargo holding all of America's products within its own shores.

Opposition charges that the bill would give an un-neutral advantage to Britain and France in the European war were denied by Connally. He said Germany had plenty of "natural" sources of munitions supply in the nations that lie around her. Germany, he said, is buying from those surrounding states, and Britain and France cannot get at this trade to stop her. Why, then, he asked, should the presumed natural advantages of resources across the seas be denied Great Britain and France?

Connally conceded that the proposed repeal bill, with its drastic shipping provisions, would entail sharp sacrifices on the part of this country. But, he said just before he made his vigorous plea for a defense structure that would hold this nation strong against aggression and maintain American seapower, the sacrifices of the pending bill would be amply justified.

ADVOCATES OF 'PEACE' JAILED

French Crack Down on Signers of Appeal Circulated for Immediate End of War.

to a possible German peace offer.

Meanwhile, semi-official sources asserted that French guns dominated six German industrial centers in the Saar and Palatinate regions of the western front—Bergzabern, Pirmasens, Zweibruecken, Saarbruecken, Saarlouis and Merzig.

Along a curving front of more than 60 miles, the French army was fighting patrol skirmishes in efforts to surround these cities, it was reported. Previously, the French were reported to hold 150 square miles of German territory containing 65 villages.

The French constantly were trying to widen their flanking movements aimed at capture of the six cities, while their planes photographed effects of artillery fire on Siegfried line fortifications.

Britain Maps Plan For Greater Warfare.

LONDON—(AP)—Britain has left the door open for consideration of any German proposal to end the war, but is charting her course apparently on the assumption that present diplomatic maneuvers are merely a lull before a greater storm of warfare.

Official sources said no formal message relating to the German offer to end the war on German's terms had reached London. They added they knew nothing of any impending communications along that line.

The German-Soviet Russian agreement to seek, if necessary, the assistance of "friendly powers" in bringing an end to the conflict upon the basis of a partitioned Poland was reached at Moscow last Thursday.

British public opinion, as expressed through the press, backed up the stand taken by Prime Minister Chamberlain in the house of commons yesterday—that Britain would test any Nazi proposal in the light of Adolf Hitler's past promises which Chamberlain said had proved "worthless."

The Times of London, which often reflects the government view, declared that any peace terms offered by Hitler must conform to those conditions to be acceptable to the British-French allies:

"They must not require us to condone the act of brigandage committed at the expense of Poland; on the contrary, they must repair the damage already done. And they must give not only to us, but to all Europe adequate assurance that the peace concluded will be durable and will not be disturbed by the continual threat of Nazi aggression. . . ."

For an indication of Germany's policy in the immediate future, Britain awaited Hitler's speech before the reichstag.

Hobbyists Hold Dinner, Marion Members Guests

Sixty hobbyists from Mansfield and Marion joined last night in a dinner at the Y. M. C. A. marking the first anniversary of the Buckeye Hobby club here.

The dinner was attended by 27 members of the Marion Hobby club, guests for the affair, and 33 members of the Mansfield club.

Principal speaker was Earl N. Hale, secretary of the Marion Y. M. C. A. and a member of the Marion club. A short talk also was given by V. H. Lodde, secretary of the Mansfield Retail Merchants association.

An address of welcome to the Marion club was given by Ralph B. Chapman, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and Dr. F. A. Stengle of Marion gave the response and introduced members of the Marion club. Guy Shawk, chairman of the dinner, acted as toastmaster.

Nazis Say Speech Not Clear to Hitler, Leaves Peace Offers Unanswered.

that Turkey's ties to Russia are far stronger than to Britain and France.

(Turkey exchanged pledges of mutual assistance with the western powers last May and June, but these have yet to be put into long-term treaty form. Meanwhile the Turkish foreign minister had spent more than a week in Mossow discussing a new Russian-Turkish accord.)

Tightening of Germany's relations with Soviet Russia was forecast by informed quarters as a result of Prime Minister Chamberlain's latest speech, which Nazis apparently regard as a rebuff to peace overtures.

Negotiations with Russia to increase the flow of vital supplies to the reich most certainly would be speeded up, it was said.

It was apparent a grave view of Britain's attitude was taken, and that Germany was preparing to strike back at France and Great Britain with the full power of her armed forces.

Additional vessels had been searched for contraband by German naval forces since Sept. 30. Some of these, it was said, had been escorted into German harbors.

Rome Says Italians Plan No Peace Parley.

ROME —(AP)— Italy's present "peace" policy was announced today by the official Stefani News agency, which said no initiative would be taken to convoke a peace conference.

A communique said:

"Several English newspapers have published dispatches according to which Il Duce (Mussolini) is studying plans for a peace conference. There was even given a list of the nations which were to participate.

"This news is without any foundation.

"Under present circumstances Italy will not take any initiative of this sort."

Usually informed Italian sources said that any peace proposals Adolf Hitler has to offer probably would be advanced in his reichstag speech this week rather than through Italian diplomatic channels.

Diplomatic activity along the Rome-Berlin axis, these sources said, has been suspended pending the reichsfuehrer's address.

Mussolini gave further evidence of Italy's intention to stay out of the war as long as possible. Visiting the new Via Imperiale, the leading site of the Rome universal exposition of 1942, he formally started work on a big building program to line the street with imposing hotels, public buildings, and apartment houses.

Italians took some slight hope from Prime Minister Chamberlain's promise in the house of commons yesterday to consider carefully any eventual peace move.

Hear Both Sides of Plan to Set Up Ohio School Board

The proposal to set up a state board of education was discussed pro and con last night by two state school authorities at a meeting of Richland county rural boards of education and teachers in Lexington.

Grover Traxler, co-author of the state school foundation law, argued against the state board proposal while Carl Berns, of the Ohio Educational association, talked for it.

Berns asserted that the appointment of a nine-member board, with not more than five members of any one party, would take politics out of the schools and put the education department on a more stable basis.

Traxler denied that politics would be removed, adding that "there would be just as much politics as ever, regardless of the appointments."

Nearly 200 board members and teachers attended the meeting, presided over by Boyd Robinson, county superintendent.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Refuse anything else. At all drug stores. 10¢ and 25¢.

CRIME TEARS ON + + + + +

By CAROLYN WELLS

(Copyright, 1939)

CHAPTER XXI

She was about to rise, but he said, "Wait a moment. I do not ask your comments, but I do ask you to believe what I have told you. For you will hear it from less sympathetic lips than mine, and I am only asking you to be prepared. But, for your nephew to be accused, does not mean that he will be convicted, unless the charges are true. If, as you say, there is no possibility of a Madison committing a crime, then you have nothing to fear. Another fact against him, is the solution of the locked room problem. Craig and his uncle were the last ones to go upstairs that night. They did not go up together, but Craig might have been waiting, when his uncle came up, gone to his room with him, perhaps to make a final plea for the lady, and disappointed at refusal, revenged himself,—"

"Stop!" Cornelia cried, "I will listen to no more. I cannot turn you out of the house, because of your authority, but I refuse to speak to you again."

Cornelia left the room, and Sutton looked after her in admiration. He was not quite ready himself to adopt the theory of Craig's guilt, but it was plausible. Yet not as he had pictured it to her. For Harley Madison had been in bed and asleep when he was killed, and it would not have been possible for Craig to have killed him on an angry impulse, when he was fully, or even partly dressed, and then have put the dead body into pajamas and into bed in a quiet, relaxed posture, as Harley had been found. And, granting the supposition, that at any time through the night, Craig might have gained admission, by waking his uncle and asking to be let in, the same argument against the position of the body obtained, and then, strongest point of all, how could Craig, after his deed was done, go out of the room and leave the door locked on the inside?

No, unless some definite explanation of that was forthcoming, the case against Craig fell to the ground in Sutton's estimation.

Fleming Stone walked over to the village, with the intention of interviewing Job Hendricks, the man Henry Potter, a butcher, said he had seen carrying a ladder to the Madison home the night of the murder.

As a rich and influential citizen, Mr. Hendricks had a house suitable to his importance. To this domicile Stone betook himself and set about discovering whether or not Mr. Hendricks had murdered his fellow-citizen. At first glance, he decided against the theory, for Job was not spry and slender, neither was he a heavyweight.

He received his caller with doubtful civility, and inquired, a little shortly what his business might be.

"I am investigating the death of Mr. Madison," Stone said, "I'm in hopes you can help me a little."

"By confession or information?" Hendricks said, meaning to be jocular.

But Stone had no mind for levity.

"As you choose. If you have a confession to make, or information to give, let me have it. Or shall I ask you questions?"

"Perhaps that would be best," Hendricks agreed, already a bit cowed by Stone's directness.

"Very well; I take it you were the principal member of the Village Improvement Committee."

"Well, I am probably the most important."

"Then you can perhaps tell me if the project will be carried on, without the assistance of Harley Madison. Or will it be given up?"

"I cannot state positively, but I have every reason to think it will be carried on. Yet it will be with Mr. Madison's assistance, for a large amount of money will come to us as a bequest from Mr. Madison."

"Then you don't know that Mr. Madison died intestate?"

"Oh, no. You are greatly mistaken. He had told the Village Committee all about the provisions of his will, and I see no harm in telling you that half of his estate is bequeathed to our Committee, to disburse as we see fit, in the interests of a better and more beautiful village."

"That was all true until last Monday. But on Monday evening Mr. Madison tore up his will and burned the pieces. He intended to make a new will the next morning, but death stepped in and made it impossible. His fortune will be divided according to law."

"It can't be true! No will! Surely his lawyer has a copy."

"An unsigned copy, yes. Of no value whatever. Now, Mr. Hendricks, Mr. Madison was murdered early Tuesday morning. Probably between two and four o'clock. You were seen at two o'clock, walking toward the Madison house, with a long ladder. Can you explain that to me?"

Job Hendricks spoke in louder tones.

"Explain nothing! I deny it! Me? going over to Madison's with a ladder! Man, you must be crazy! Get out of here, and never let me see you again, or I may do you injury!"

"Sit down, Mr. Hendricks. If I go out of here, I shall send a policeman at once, who will be less lenient with you than I am. If you are sure you did not go over toward the Madison house, the night in question, you've only to say so, and prove the fact, and that's that."

Job sat down. "Who said he saw me going? Who made up that black lie against me?"

"Can you prove it is a lie?"

"Look here. You must know, a negative proposition can't always be proved. Let the man who slandered me do the proving. Who is he, the skulking rascal? If I ever get a hold of him—"

"Be quiet, Mr. Hendricks. I am working with the police, and we are finding it difficult to apprehend a criminal. You will be arrested on suspicion if you carry on like this. Calm down now, and talk to me rationally. Tell me this. Do you own a long ladder not too heavy to be carried by one man?"

"Well, suppose I do?"

"Now, why did you carry your long ladder along the street at two o'clock last Tuesday morning?"

"I tell you I didn't! Let me face the man that said so!"

"Don't be rash. He is as positive as you are. Suppose you deny this thing to the police, and suppose the other man affirms it. Which one of you will be police believe? The other man, of course."

"Why would they?"

"Because he merely says he saw you, and that is a probable statement; whereas, you say you were not there, and that sounds like a defence and is likely to cause suspicion of your veracity."

"Just you tell me who said he saw me," Hendricks said.

"Mr. Hendricks, take my advice; give up this idea of fighting the man who saw you," Stone replied. "You were walking along with your ladder at 2 o'clock. For such an act, you have either an innocent explanation, which would free you of all suspicion, or—you had an errand in view, which you will not own up to, unless forced. I am not trying to force you. I shall be glad if you can give a reasonable explanation. But if you do not, an officer will be here very soon, and you will find yourself in hot water. Come on, now, out with it!"

Job Hendricks looked at the detective.

"Well, I did go over toward the Madison place, at the time you say. I did take my ladder, it's strong, but light. But I did not go with the intent of killing Harley Madison! I had no weapon with me, I had no intent of wrong, I wanted to see Madison alone. I assumed he would be in bed and the house all locked up. I meant to climb up and tap on the window, and he would let me in. But I didn't go to the house at all. The ladder grew heavy, and, too, I thought it was a fool's errand, that time o' night, so I turned around and went back home."

"Was that how it was?" said Fleming Stone.

Fleming Stone did not believe Job Hendricks' story of why he went to see Harley Madison at 2 o'clock in the morning. He believed in the ladder episode, but he felt sure Hendricks had a wickeder design than a mere neighborly chat. He went on to the office of Hiram Riley, the astute lawyer, who attended to the legal affairs of New Plymouth's elite.

"I wish you'd tell me, Mr. Riley," Stone began, "how deeply Mr. Madison was involved in the affairs of the Village Improvement Committee."

Vendol Does Local Man So Much Good, Lauds It to Sky

Mansfield resident tells how celebrated medicine relieved acid indigestion, gas in stomach, short breath, cramps, and other troubles due to constipation.

MR. JUDSON J. LEARY

Many remarkable recoveries are reported by taking Vendol—recoveries verified by well known Mansfield men and women who have put this wonderful combination of Roots, Herbs, and Alkalines to the test and experienced its astonishing benefits. Daily, callers at Central Drug Store listen to the Vendol Man explain the powers of this celebrated compound to relieve acid indigestion, gassy stomach, dizziness, coated tongue, headaches, pains in back and legs, and many similar distressing symptoms when caused by constipation or need of a diuretic to the kidneys. This is again forcefully illustrated by the following case:

Mr. Judson J. Leary, of 104 Lida St., Mansfield, says, "I had been troubled by constipation a long time, but Vendol and the little Vendol laxative tablets gave such wonderful relief that in a short time my sour stomach, gassy, bloated feeling, acid risings, and other upset conditions in my stomach were relieved and my nerves calmed down so that my sleep was restful, giving me a feeling of new energy and strength.

"Vendol also acted as a diuretic to my kidneys, and soon all the aches and pains in my back and limbs were relieved so that stooping, bending, and other activities no longer bothered me.

"I have Vendol alone to thank for my recovery from this distressing condition, and I hope this public statement will serve to acquaint thousands of my friends and neighbors with this wonderful mediicne, and let them know that I advise them to give it a trial."

Come to Central Drug Store, Cor. Main & Fourth Sts., and let the Vendol Man tell you all about this celebrated medicine that is doing so much good in this city and nearby communities. Vendol is sold by all leading druggists.

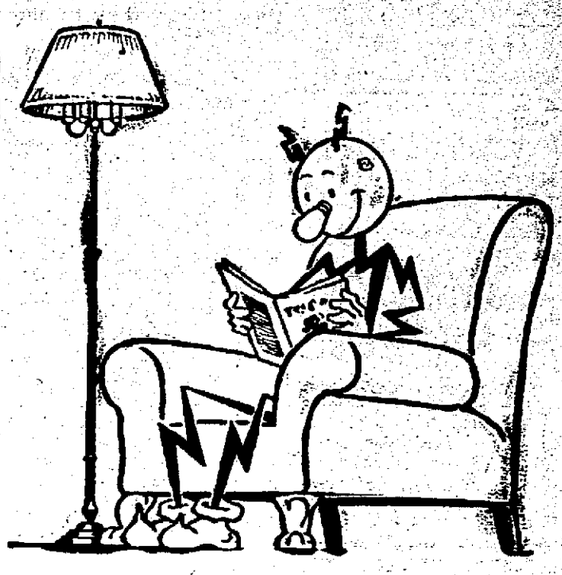
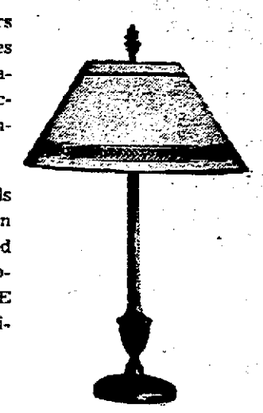
BETTER LIGHT- BETTER SIGHT



Sight saving lighting and I.E.S. Lamps came into existence together. Extraordinary public acceptance of the new type of construction followed. New standards in portable lamps were created. Why? Because, for the first time in history, the Illuminating Engineering Society, nationally recognized group of lighting experts, set up 54 specifications for an ideal lamp for seeing—as distinguished from purely decorative lamps.

Today sixty-five lamp and shade builders make these lamps in a wide variety of styles and beautiful finishes, to these 54 specifications—11 for sight saving lighting; 14 for electrical safety; and 29 for all-around mechanical excellence.



Before lamps can proudly wear the initials "I.E.S." and be adorned with the Certification of Compliance, specimen lamps are checked and inspected by the Electrical Testing Laboratories, New York, to see that they ARE built in full compliance with all 54 specifications.

DECLARES ARMS SALE 'REACHES OUT FOR WAR'

Vandenberg Warns of Dangers of 'Unneutral' Act Should U. S. Shift Neutrality.

of the administration bill opened the second day of senate debate debate was suspended yesterday on neutrality law revision. The because of the death of Senator Logan (D., Ky.)

Sees It Peace Key.

Connally urged adoption of the proposal prohibiting American ships from carrying any materials to warring nations as a means of keeping the United States at peace.

"Germany did not hesitate to sink our ships before we entered the World war and were at peace," he said. "She will not hesitate to do so now."

Vandenberg asserted that the arms embargo had become the "symbol" of American neutrality. He contended that its repeal would be accepted by the world as indicating that America was taking sides in the European conflict.

Although he said he favored re-enactment of the expired "cash and carry" sections of the present law, Vandenberg declared that attempts to sell arms on that basis would bring serious consequences. The expired sections covered only materials other than arms.

He said that belligerents would be likely to sink "in our front-yard" the ships of other belligerents which came here to get arms. Any boom caused by such sales, he added, would be likely to have disastrous after effects on American economy.

He asserted that belligerents might not long be able to pay cash for munitions here.

"We may start with 'cash and carry' on munitions, which sounds rather neighborly and profitable and inoffensive," he said. "It almost puts peace on a chain-store basis. But alien 'cash' is limited. One day it runs out."

The next steps, Vandenberg said, would be "credit and carry" and then "loans and carry."

Vandenberg said that the European war was not our war, that this country should have learned from experience that there was little it could do to prevent the recurrence of conflict on that continent.

He scoffed at arguments that this country would be "next" if collectivism wins in Europe.

"There will not be any 'next' for any participants in this world war if it runs on to a conclusive military end because it will be so decimating and exhaustive for all concerned.

"But if there were to be a 'next' and—conceding the improbabilities for the sake of argument—it should be us, I submit that we were well advised to husband all our resources and perfect our own unassailable defense, here upon this side of 3,000 miles of sea, rather than to dissipate our strength and our vitality in advance."

Connally took the floor shortly after noon and his opponent for the day, Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) listened intently. Retention of the embargo, he argued, permits the "outlaw" nation to arm in peacetime and strike out against a defenseless victim secure in the knowledge that the U. S. arms embargo will clamp down and prevent the victim from buying arms to defend himself."

"If we desire peace," Connally summed, "if our compelling motive is to remain aloof from the horrors and terrors and miseries of the war now ravaging Europe, if it is our desire that American boys remain upon their own soil to pursue their normal occupations and callings, rather than to be called to the battlefield to shed their blood and perhaps to die, we should adopt the joint resolution now pending (the embargo repeal bill) instead of retaining the present embargo act."

Denying claims of the opposition forces that repeal would bring trouble, Connally accused them of "baseless statements" and said they were "trying to frighten the people."

Connally argued that the existing law prohibits arms sales but permitted American boats to haul other commodities sold to belligerents may bring war to the United States. He cited a long list of German submarine attacks on neutral shipping during the World war, and pointed out that most of these attacks fell upon vessels carrying non-war commodities.

"What Germany did in the World war she will do in this war," Connally warned. "What she did in the World war she is already doing now. Unrestricted submarine warfare on all neutral commerce has already begun. Germany did not hesitate to sink our ships before we entered the World war and were at peace. She will not hesitate to do so now."

Returning to his challenging defense to the arms embargo repeal bill with its provisions prohibiting American vessels from hauling any cargoes to belligerents, the Texan drew this conclusion:

"The ending resolution makes it wholly improbable that any American vessel or American cargo will be sunk, since by law no such ship and no such cargo can move to any nation at war . . ."

The only safe alternative to the embargo repeal and cash-and-carry law, so-called, Connally argued, would be a blanket embargo holding all of America's products within its own shores.

Opposition charges that the bill would give an un-neutral advantage to Britain and France in the European war were denied by Connally. He said Germany had plenty of "natural" sources of munitions supply in the nations that lie around her. Germany, he said, is buying from those surrounding states, and Britain and France cannot get at this trade to stop her. Why, then, he asked, should the presumed natural advantages of resources across the seas be denied Great Britain and France?

Connally conceded that the proposed repeal bill, with its drastic shipping provisions, would entail sharp sacrifices on the part of this country. But, he said just before he made his vigorous plea for a defense structure that would hold this nation strong against aggression and maintain American seapower, the sacrifices of the pending bill would be amply justified.

ADVOCATES OF 'PEACE' JAILED

French Crack Down on Signers of Appeal Circulated for Immediate End of War.

to a possible German peace offer.

Meanwhile, semi-official sources asserted that French guns dominated six German industrial centers in the Saar and Palatinate regions of the western front—Bergzabern, Pirmasens, Zweibruecken, Saarbruecken, Saarlouis and Merzig.

Along a curving front of more than 60 miles, the French army was fighting patrol skirmishes in efforts to surround these cities, it was reported. Previously, the French were reported to hold 150 square miles of German territory containing 65 villages.

The French constantly were trying to widen their flanking movements aimed at capture of the six cities, while their planes photographed effects of artillery fire on Siegfried line fortifications.

Britain Maps Plan For Greater Warfare.

LONDON—(AP)—Britain has left the door open for consideration of any German proposal to end the war, but is charting her course apparently on the assumption that present diplomatic maneuvers are merely a lull before a greater storm of warfare.

Official sources said no formal message relating to the German offer to end the war on German's terms had reached London. They added they knew nothing of any impending communications along that line.

The German-Soviet Russian agreement to seek, if necessary, the assistance of "friendly powers" in bringing an end to the conflict upon the basis of a partitioned Poland was reached at Moscow last Thursday.

British public opinion, as expressed through the press, backed up the stand taken by Prime Minister Chamberlain in the house of commons yesterday—that Britain would test any Nazi proposal in the light of Adolf Hitler's past promises which Chamberlain said had proved "worthless."

The Times of London, which often reflects the government view, declared that any peace terms offered by Hitler must conform to those conditions to be acceptable to the British-French allies:

"They must not require us to condone the act of brigandage committed at the expense of Poland; on the contrary, they must repair the damage already done. And they must give not only to us, but to all Europe adequate assurance that the peace concluded will be durable and will not be disturbed by the continual threat of Nazi aggression. . . ."

For an indication of Germany's policy in the immediate future, Britain awaited Hitler's speech before the reichstag.

Hobbyists Hold Dinner, Marion Members Guests

Sixty hobbyists from Mansfield and Marion joined last night in a dinner at the Y. M. C. A. marking the first anniversary of the Buckeye Hobby club here.

The dinner was attended by 27 members of the Marion Hobby club, guests for the affair, and 33 members of the Mansfield club.

Principal speaker was Earl N. Hale, secretary of the Marion Y. M. C. A. and a member of the Marion club. A short talk also was given by V. H. Lodde, secretary of the Mansfield Retail Merchants association.

An address of welcome to the Marion club was given by Ralph B. Chapman, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and Dr. F. A. Stengle of Marion gave the response and introduced members of the Marion club. Guy Shawk, chairman of the dinner, acted as toastmaster.

Nazis Say Speech Not Clear to Hitler, Leaves Peace Offers Unanswered.

that Turkey's ties to Russia are far stronger than to Britain and France.

(Turkey exchanged pledges of mutual assistance with the western powers last May and June, but these have yet to be put into long-term treaty form. Meanwhile the Turkish foreign minister had spent more than a week in Mossow discussing a new Russian-Turkish accord.)

Tightening of Germany's relations with Soviet Russia was forecast by informed quarters as a result of Prime Minister Chamberlain's latest speech, which Nazis apparently regard as a rebuff to peace overtures.

Negotiations with Russia to increase the flow of vital supplies to the reich most certainly would be speeded up, it was said.

It was apparent a grave view of Britain's attitude was taken, and that Germany was preparing to strike back at France and Great Britain with the full power of her armed forces.

Additional vessels had been searched for contraband by German naval forces since Sept. 30. Some of these, it was said, had been escorted into German harbors.

Rome Says Italians Plan No Peace Parley.

ROME — (AP) — Italy's present "peace" policy was announced today by the official Stefani News agency, which said no initiative would be taken to convoke a peace conference.

A communique said:

"Several English newspapers have published dispatches according to which Il Duce (Mussolini) is studying plans for a peace conference. There was even given a list of the nations which were to participate.

"This news is without any foundation.

"Under present circumstances Italy will not take any initiative of this sort."

Usually informed Italian sources said that any peace proposals Adolf Hitler has to offer probably would be advanced in his reichstag speech this week rather than through Italian diplomatic channels.

Diplomatic activity along the Rome-Berlin axis, these sources said, has been suspended pending the reichsfuehrer's address.

Mussolini gave further evidence of Italy's intention to stay out of the war as long as possible. Visiting the new Via Imperiale, the leading site of the Rome universal exposition of 1942, he formally started work on a big building program to line the street with imposing hotels, public buildings, and apartment houses.

Italians took some slight hope from Prime Minister Chamberlain's promise in the house of commons yesterday to consider carefully any eventual peace move.

Association officials said they believed Father Coughlin may have radio contracts extending for two weeks into the future. The contracts can be fulfilled, they said, after which the ban will take effect.

In explaining its rule, the committee said:

"This does not mean, of course, that those who wish to discuss matters of public controversy are barred from the air. Far from it. Through the new code, representative spokesmen of groups will be given free time to present their views, in accord with the public interest, program balance and availability of time."

He was taken to the hospital in an ambulance which had been summoned by the Clark youth. Wolford's condition was reported as "good" this noon by the attending physician.

Young Smeyak received internal injuries when his bicycle struck the side of an automobile driven by R. J. Swallen, 187 Raleigh avenue, at 1:15 p. m. yesterday, police reported.

Swallen told police the youth ran into the side of his car as he was making a turn off Orange street into the driveway of the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company. The boy was taken to General hospital by Swallen. His condition was reported as "fair" by hospital attendants.

Both boys attend morning classes at the junior high school where half-day sessions are in effect due to the building program.

Hear Both Sides of Plan to Set Up Ohio School Board

The proposal to set up a state board of education was discussed pro and con last night by two state school authorities at a meeting of Richland county rural boards of education and teachers in Lexington.

Grover Traxler, co-author of the state school foundation law, argued against the state board proposal while Carl Berns, of the Ohio Educational association, talked for it.

Berns asserted that the appointment of a nine-member board, with not more than five members of any one party, would take politics out of the schools and put the education department on a more stable basis.

Traxler denied that politics would be removed, adding that "there would be just as much politics as ever, regardless of the appointments."

Nearly 200 board members and teachers attended the meeting, presided over by Boyd Robinson, county superintendent.

CRIME TEARS ON + + + + +

By CAROLYN WELLS

(Copyright, 1939)

CHAPTER XXI

She was about to rise, but he said, "Wait a moment. I do not ask your comments, but I do ask you to believe what I have told you. For you will hear it from less sympathetic lips than mine, and I am only asking you to be prepared. But, for your nephew to be accused, does not mean that he will be convicted, unless the charges are true. If, as you say, there is no possibility of a Madison committing a crime, then you have nothing to fear. Another fact against him, is the solution of the locked room problem. Craig and his uncle were the last ones to go upstairs that night. They did not go up together, but Craig might have been waiting, when his uncle came up, gone to his room with him, perhaps to make a final plea for the lady, and disappointed at refusal, revenged himself,—"

"Stop!" Cornelia cried, "I will listen to no more. I cannot turn you out of the house, because of your authority, but I refuse to speak to you again."

* * *

Cornelia left the room, and Sutton looked after her in admiration. He was not quite ready himself to adopt the theory of Craig's guilt, but it was plausible. Yet not as he had pictured it to her. For Harley Madison had been in bed and asleep when he was killed, and it would not have been possible for Craig to have killed him on an angry impulse, when he was fully, or even partly dressed, and then have put the dead body into pajamas and into bed in a quiet, relaxed posture, as Harley had been found. And, granting the supposition, that at any time through the night, Craig might have gained admission, by waking his uncle and asking to be let in, the same argument against the position of the body obtained, and then, strongest point of all, how could Craig, after his deed was done, go out of the room and leave the door locked on the inside?

No, unless some definite explanation of that was forthcoming, the case against Craig fell to the ground in Sutton's estimation.

Fleming Stone walked over to the village, with the intention of interviewing Job Hendricks; the man Henry Potter, a butcher, said he had seen carrying a ladder to the Madison home the night of the murder.

As a rich and influential citizen, Mr. Hendricks had a house suitable to his importance. To this domicile Stone betook himself and set about discovering whether or not Mr. Hendricks had murdered his fellow-citizen. At first glance, he decided against the theory, for Job was not spry and slender, neither was he a heavyweight.

He received his caller with doubtful civility, and inquired, a little shortly what his business might be.

"I am investigating the death of Mr. Madison," Stone said, 'I'm in hopes you can help me a little."

"By confession or information?" Hendricks said, meaning to be jocular.

But Stone had no mind for levity.

"As you choose. If you have a confession to make, or information to give, let me have it. Or shall I ask you questions?"

"Perhaps that would be best," Hendricks agreed, already a bit cowed by Stone's directness.

"Very well; I take it you were the principal member of the Village Improvement Committee."

"Well, I am probably the most important."

"Then you can perhaps tell me if the project will be carried on, without the assistance of Harley Madison. Or will it be given up?"

"I cannot state positively, but I have every reason to think it will be carried on. Yet it will be with Mr. Madison's assistance, for a large amount of money will come to us as a bequest from Mr. Madison."

"Then you don't know that Mr. Madison died intestate?"

"Oh, no. You are greatly mistaken. He had told the Village Committee all about the provisions of his will, and I see no harm in telling you that half of his estate is bequeathed to our Committee, to disburse as we see fit, in the interests of a better and more beautiful village."

"That was all true until last Monday. But on Monday evening Mr. Madison tore up his will and burned the pieces. He intended to make a new will the next morning, but death stepped in and made it impossible. His fortune will be divided according to law."

"It can't be true! No will! Surely his lawyer has a copy."

"An unsigned copy, yes. Of no value whatever. Now, Mr. Hendricks, Mr. Madison was murdered early Tuesday morning. Probably between two and four o'clock. You were seen at two o'clock, walking toward the Madison house, with a long ladder. Can you explain that to me?"

Job Hendricks spoke in louder tones.

"Explain nothing! I deny it! Me? going over to Madison's with a ladder! Man, you must be crazy! Get out of here, and never let me see you again, or I may do you injury!"

"Sit down, Mr. Hendricks. If I go out of here, I shall send a policeman at once, who will be less lenient with you than I am. If you are sure you did not go over toward the Madison house, the night in question, you've only to say so, and prove the fact, and that's that."

Job sat down. "Who said he saw me going? Who made up that black lie against me?"

"Can you prove it is a lie?"

"Look here. You must know, a negative proposition can't always be proved. Let the man who slandered me do the proving. Who is he, the skulking rascal? If I ever get a hold of him—"

"Be quiet, Mr. Hendricks. I am working with the police, and we are finding it difficult to apprehend a criminal. You will be arrested on suspicion if you carry on like this. Calm down now, and talk to me rationally. Tell me this. Do you own a long ladder not too heavy to be carried by one man?"

"Well, suppose I do?"

"Now, why did you carry your long ladder along the street at two o'clock last Tuesday morning?"

"I tell you I didn't! Let me face the man that said so!"

"Don't be rash. He is as positive as you are. Suppose you deny this thing to the police, and suppose the other man affirms it. Which one of you will be police believe? The other man, of course."

"Why would they?"

"Because he merely says he saw you, and that is a probable statement; whereas, you say you were not there, and that sounds like a defence and is likely to cause suspicion of your veracity."

"Just you tell me who said he saw me," Hendricks said.

"Mr. Hendricks, take my advice; give up this idea of fighting the man who saw you," Stone replied. "You were walking along with your ladder at 2 o'clock. For such an act, you have either an innocent explanation, which would free you of all suspicion, or—you had an errand in view, which you will not own up to; unless forced. I am not trying to force you. I shall be glad if you can give a reasonable explanation. But if you do not, an officer will be here very soon, and you will find yourself in hot water. Come on, now, out with it!"

Job Hendricks looked at the detective.

"Well, I did go over toward the Madison place, at the time you say. I did take my ladder, it's strong, but light. But I did not go with the intent of killing Harley Madison! I had no weapon with me, I had no intent of wrong, I wanted to see Madison alone. I assumed he would be in bed and the house all locked up. I meant to climb up and tap on the window, and he would let me in. But I didn't go to the house at all. The ladder grew heavy, and, too, I thought it was a fool's errand, that time o' night, so I turned around and went back home."

"Was that how it was?" said Fleming Stone.

Fleming Stone did not believe Job Hendricks' story of why he went to see Harley Madison at 2 o'clock in the morning. He believed in the ladder episode, but he felt sure Hendricks had a wickeder design than a mere neighborly chat. He went on to the office of Hiram Riley, the astute lawyer, who attended to the legal affairs of New Plymouth's elite.

"I wish you'd tell me, Mr. Riley," Stone began, "how deeply Mr. Madison was involved in the affairs of the Village Improvement Committee."

Vendol Does Local Man So Much Good, Lauds It to Sky

Mansfield resident tells how celebrated medicine relieved acid indigestion, gas in stomach, short breath, cramps, and other troubles due to constipation.

MR. JUDSON J. LEARY

Many remarkable recoveries are reported by taking Vendol—recoveries verified by well known Mansfield men and women who have put this wonderful combination of Roots, Herbs, and Alkalines to the test and experienced its astonishing benefits. Daily, callers at Central Drug Store listen to the Vendol Man explain the powers of this celebrated compound to relieve acid indigestion, gassy stomach, dizziness, coated tongue, headaches, pains in back and legs, and many similar distressing symptoms when caused by constipation or need of a diuretic to the kidneys. This is again forcefully illustrated by the following case:

Mr. Judson J. Leary, of 104 Lida St., Mansfield, says, "I had been troubled by constipation a long time, but Vendol and the little Vendol laxative tablets gave such wonderful relief that in a short time my sour stomach, gassy, bloated feeling, acid risings, and other upset conditions in my stomach were relieved and my nerves calmed down so that my sleep was restful, giving me a feeling of new energy and strength.

"Vendol also acted as a diuretic to my kidneys, and soon all the aches and pains in my back and limbs were relieved so that stooping, bending, and other activities no longer bothered me.

"I have Vendol alone to thank for my recovery from this distressing condition, and I hope this public statement will serve to acquaint thousands of my friends and neighbors with this wonderful medicne, and let them know that I advise them to give it a trial."

Come to Central Drug Store, Cor. Main & Fourth Sts., and let the Vendol Man tell you all about this celebrated medicine that is doing so much good in this city and nearby communities. Vendol is sold by all leading druggists.

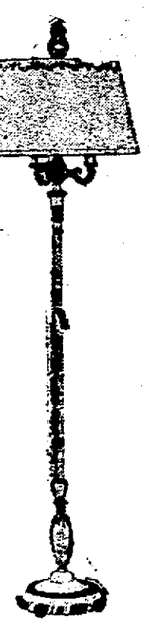
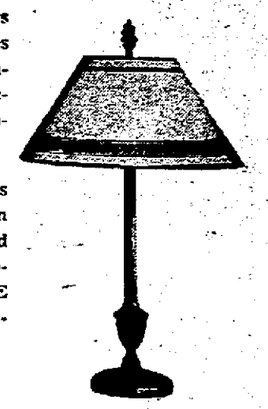
BETTER LIGHT-BETTER SIGHT



Sight saving lighting and I.E.S. Lamps came into existence together. Extraordinary public acceptance of the new type of construction followed. New standards in portable lamps were created. Why? Because, for the first time in history, the Illuminating Engineering Society, nationally recognized group of lighting experts, set up 54 specifications for an ideal lamp for seeing—as distinguished from purely decorative lamps.

Today sixty-five lamp and shade builders make these lamps in a wide variety of styles and beautiful finishes, to these 54 specifications—11 for sight saving lighting; 14 for electrical safety; and 29 for all-around mechanical excellence.



Before lamps can proudly wear the initials "I.E.S." and be adorned with the Certification of Compliance, specimen lamps are checked and inspected by the Electrical Testing Laboratories, New York, to see that they ARE built in full compliance with all 54 specifications.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1939.

Now that Poland has been carved, maybe Turkey is next.

If Freud's daughter publishes the late psycho-analyst's views of the mentality of Hitler—as has been suggested—we hope Hitler reads them.

More Bigelow Confusion

MORE CONFUSION seems to come up each day as to exactly what is meant by the Bigelow old age pension amendment, which will be on the November ballot for a vote.

Legal authorities have found several passages in the Bigelow plan that might mean one thing and again might mean another.

One way, they mean a staggering tax burden for the state—the other, they mean a complete failure of the financing machinery of the pension plan to do what it is supposed to do.

The Bigelow plan, if approved, would pay each single person in Ohio, if over 60 and "not gainfully employed," a pension of $50 a month. In the case of married couples over 60 and "not gainfully employed," it would pay $80 per month.

State Tax Commissioner William S. Evatt has estimated that the plan would cost the state $310,000,000 in 1940. He has also estimated that the new taxes provided by the plan would provide between $50,000,000 and $140,000,000.

The Bigelow plan calls for a tax of 2 per cent on land valued at more than $20,000 an acre. But the plan is vague in that it does not specify whether it means only the land or the land and the building on it.

If it means only the land, Evatt estimates that only $500,000,000 of the state's $6,800,000,000 tax duplicate would be taxable and the income would be only $10,000,000.

If it includes the buildings and improvements, then $5,000,000,000 of the duplicate is taxable and the income will be $100,000,000.

In addition, the Bigelow plan calls for an income tax equal to one-fourth of the federal tax. Evatt estimates that would produce $40,000,000, on the basis of Ohio's 1938 federal income payments—making a total of $140,000,000.

That has, even in these days of spectacular figures, the sound of an astronomical measurement.

Assuming Mr. Evatt's figures are right, it's a bit discouraging, isn't it, to think that even that huge sum isn't half enough to finance the Bigelow scheme?

It Can Happen Here

A MAN called up yesterday, only a few hours after the paper had appeared on the street, and said:

"I don't like that blank blank stuff you printed tonight by that blank blank Hoover and if you print any more of it I'm going to quit your blank blank paper."

When we printed the article by the former president, we hadn't expected that everyone would agree with it. But since Mr. Hoover is a man of considerable knowledge on world affairs, both military and political, we thought his views interesting.

Our reader—maybe he isn't a reader by now—who "blanked" so liberally about the article thought so, too, though he would probably be the first to deny it. But if he hadn't been interested, he could hardly have worked up such a generous dislike for it.

In this country Mr. Hoover can go right on saying what he said in yesterday's article, and newspapers can go right on printing what he says, and readers can go right on disagreeing—even blank blank strenuously—with him, and with the papers, if they want to.

In some countries, if you differ with what's in the papers and say so, you land in concentration camps—or worse.

For New Members

A FALL membership campaign is under way in Mansfield, without a great deal of shouting and fuss and furore.

The Chamber of Commerce is seeking 80 new members, in a fall round-up.

Without ostentation, and with a sincere belief they'll get them, team workers are going about soliciting prospects, and telling them why they should join the Chamber of Commerce.

There needn't be a lot of fuss about Chamber of Commerce membership campaigns in Mansfield any more. That organization has proven its real value to the community on too many occasions in the past few years to have difficulty in "selling" memberships.

Mansfielders, as a whole, recognize the value of the C. of C. So certainly it ought not to be difficult to find 80 business men who are willing to put that recognition in the form of active participation through membership.

Coal Reform

THE WAR abroad works out in a thousand unexpected ways. One of the most interesting effects is the solution of the bootleg mining problem in eastern Pennsylvania.

Unemployed miners for years have been employing themselves by digging the hard coal on other people's property and selling it for what it would bring. This illegitimate industry is said to have amounted to 3,000,000 tons a year.

Now the growing demand for coal to ship abroad makes jobs for them again in normal industry. So they are leaving the private pits voluntarily. And as they leave, the owners seal up the pits.

Barber-Shop Singers

WHAT, inquires the Philadelphia Inquirer, has become of the nation's male quartets? A world championship contest in this erstwhile popular sport was held in Tulsa, Okla., not long ago, but only sixteen quartets from seven states appeared. Maybe this is what is wrong with the country.

The potential quartets in the hundreds of other towns in the other forty-one states missed something by not participating in that battle of harmonization. The genuine, old-fashioned male quartet had a lot of fun, along with just enough solemnity to win the respect of the non-vocal.

Being a war correspondent hasn't the glamor it used to have in the days of Richard Harding Davis. Nobody tells 'em anything or lets 'em go anywhere.

"Every mother up in Ontario nurses her own children," says Dr. Alan Dafoe. That is, unless they're mothers of quintuplets.

Bremen, Bremen, who's got the Bremen?

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Life in the less stylish precincts of Avenue A has contributed more than once to the cinema entertainment of the nation. One of the earliest talkies was a little thing called "Madonna of Avenue A," with one of the Costello sisters, Helena I think, as the star. It dealt with the poor but virtuous who struggle for survival in the tougher, burlier sections of New York.

I could never get the title of that picture out of my mind because I could never remember many pictures, silent or otherwise, which were worse. Consequently, seven or eight years ago when I first came to New York to live, I found my way down there one day to have a look at the terrain that provided the background for Miss Costello's Illiad.

THE adventure was a disappointment. The movie sets in no wise resembled the street that is flung down Manhattan's east side, next to the river. Drab it certainly is. It is poorer that Job's turkey. On hot summer nights when the tank steamers churn up the muddy bottom of the river, Avenue A is visited with an odor which is similar to rotten eggs. There are dark passageways which I, at least, would have no yearning to follow unless accompanied by a policeman.

But it isn't really tough any more. I doubt if it ever was. The fascinating aura of crime which hung over Chatham Square and the Asiatic quarter for so many years, and the tales of thuggery which even now have a place in the affairs of Hell's Kitchen, namely Tenth avenue on the west side, find no sequel in career of Avenue A.

I was talking about that with a cop just the other day, a cop known now and then as Billy the Kid, because his name happens to be William. Avenue A was his home as a boy. It is a part of his beat now that he has grown up and is playing cops and robbers in earnest.

As I asked him about the gangs whose activities the movies had assured me were many and varied, he leaned against a telephone pole and yawned. "Haven't made an arrest in four days," he said. "Haven't even picked up a suspect".

He looked off down the street to where a gang of kids were playing about an exposed water main. "See that kid with the black curly hair? His pap was killed down here four years ago, but it was accidental. Gun went off and took him in the chest."

Well?

"Well, there ain't been no shootin' since. We don't have much trouble down here."

ACROSS the street from where the workmen were digging on the watermain was a little candy store. There was a rack of newspapers out in front. You could buy cigarets and pipe tobacco there, but that's about all. That represents the commerce of the district.

Most of those kids are Boy Scouts, or Junior Boy Scouts. Two priests invaded the district years ago and organized the scout troop. They organized Bible classes and other organizations, including athletic teams, for the kids.

The Ole Swimmin' hole is a rotten pier on the East river. The kids go in naked, when they can get away with it. All little boys like to go swimming naked. The cops chase them, of course, and bellow blood-curdling warnings after them, but nobody ever gets hurt. Who ever heard of a cop that could outrun a barefoot boy?

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Saturday, Oct. 4, 1919.

Delegation of 20 Mansfield Shriners went to Cleveland to attend fall ceremonial.

Two buildings at 72-74 North Diamond street were being removed to make way for auto sales building.

Children playing with matches started fire in shed in rear of 662 Springmill street.

A number of Mansfield guests attended wedding of Miss Portia Clark and Capt. Clare W. Woolwine at Ashland.

Party was given for little Elizabeth Eileen Ruhlen on her birthday anniversary.

Appointment of C. K. Smaltz as traffic manager of Mansfield Tire and Rubber company was announced.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Thursday, Oct. 4, 1934.

Duck hunters were out before the dawn as season opened, with hunting permitted until Dec. 8.

Marjorie Freitchen, 17, senior at Mansfield Senior High and Pauline V. Weaver, 16, junior at Madison High, died.

Police Chief William Lauer and other police officials were in Cleveland attending safety-congress.

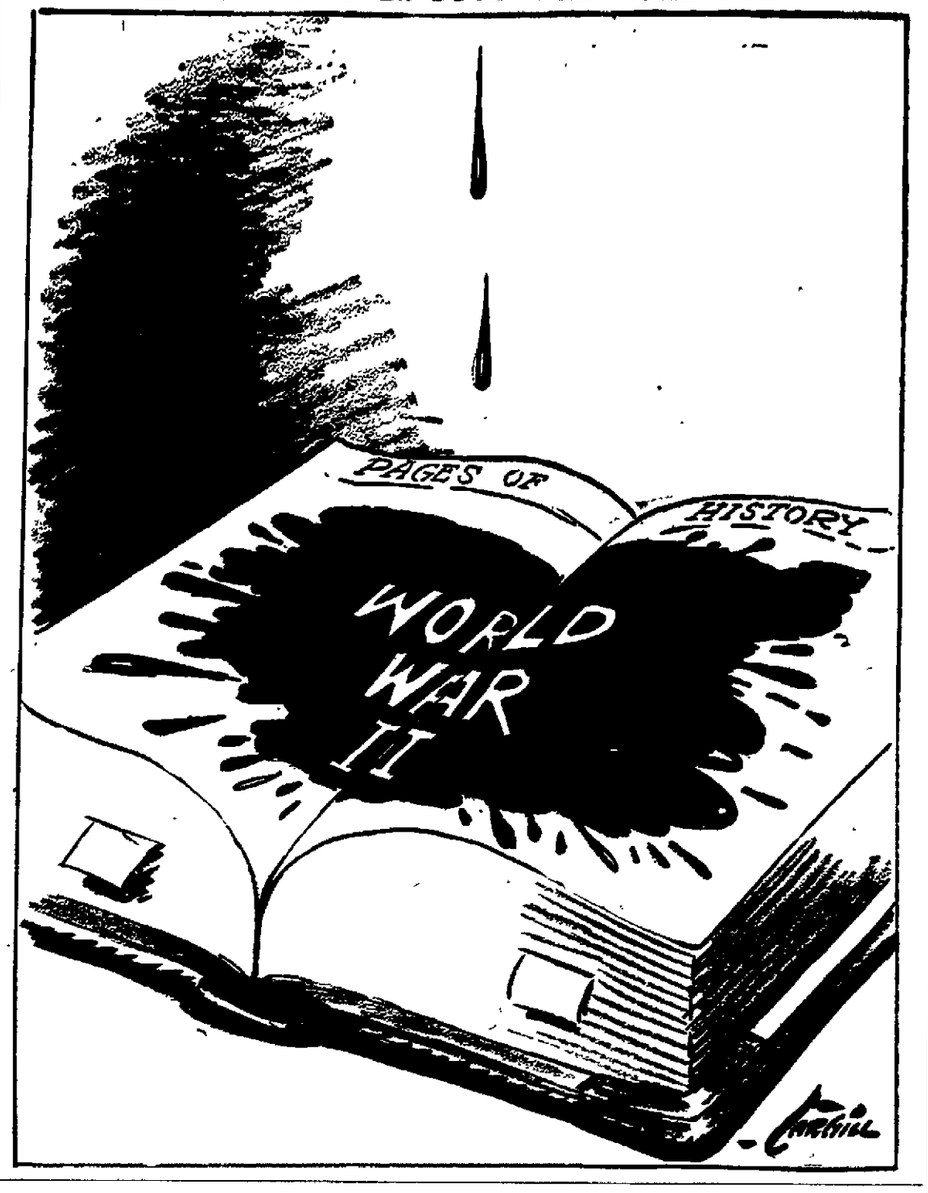
Home of C. C. Bemiller, 31 Elmwood drive, was robbed of quantity of clothing.

Mrs. Harry Rist was guest of honor at post-nuptial party given at Susie Janis tea room.

TODAY IN HISTORY

The Battle of Germantown was fought on Oct. 4, 1777. General Washington attacked the British forces in an effort to recapture Philadelphia.

"THE LEAVES TURN RED AGAIN"



Truth of Old Adage Proven Again

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—It is a perfect demonstration of the old adage that politics makes strange bedfellows that the most militant support President Roosevelt is receiving in his fight to repeal the embargo on the sale of "arms, ammunition and implements of war" to belligerets is coming from the very senators the president tried so vigorously, but unsuccessfully, to liquidate in 1938.

It was Senator Millard E. Tydings, of Maryland, against whom the president not only backed David J. Lewis but actually invaded the Free State and spoke for him, who told peace at any price hecklers just what he thought of them a few days back. The two most important gains the pro-repeal side has made were Senators Walter F. George, of Georgia, and Ellison D. (Cotton Ed) Smith, of South Carolina, who triumphed over the purge despite the utmost efforts of the "janissaries." Incidentally, the president spoke in both Georgia and South Carolina in that campaign.

Leaders of the conservative Southern Democrats, that group which is more distasteful to the Corcorans and the Cohens than anything except the electric utility magnates, are Senators Carter Glass and Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia. Neither of them happened to come up for re-election in 1938, or they would certainly have been subjected to a purge primary. As it was, a New Dealer, William E. Dodd, jr., ran against a Byrd congressman in the Alexandria district, and was defeated three to one, while a New Dealer was unseated in another primary that year by a Byrd organization candidate for the house.

Glass and Byrd are both for repeal of the arms embargo. So is Senator Edward R. Burke, of Nebraska, who also did not have to face a primary in 1938, but comes up for re-election next year.

It had been figured that Burke would certainly be marked for slaughter, and might have great difficulty, what with Senator George W. Norris and the administration both against him. But now Burke is fighting side by side with Uncle George and supporting the president in one of the toughest battles the White House has staged on Capitol Hill.

Of course all the "me too" boys are with the president. But they always are, and hence do not rate much credit. It's the man who helped you last in politics who seems the most important—not the man who helped you two years ago, and never the man who has always been with you. Especially if the man who helped you last came as an almost unhoped for and unexpected addition to the force you were contemplating.

What is all this going to do to the campaign next year?

Nobody, of course, pays any attention to Elliot Roosevelt's published statement that his father has not given a thought to a third term. Most politicians figure that the president intends to run again. Most of them figure that the war situation has made it almost inevitable that he will be renominated if he wants it, and many more than a short time back now think he can be re-elected.

There will be a great deal of twisting and squirming, of course, as the months pass by. The White House is not taking a flat position that this is our war, and we had better help Britain and France by getting into it soon. On the contrary, the president is insisting that repeal of the embargo, which of course will help Britain and France, is the surest way to keep us out of war. Some infer that what he really means is that only by our helping indirectly can we avoid helping the Allies directly.

But there will be a lot of "weasel words" between now and November, 1940!

Grab Bag

One-Minute Test.

1. What are the "genes?"
2. Can a watch be used as a compass?
3. Was a vice president of the United States ever elected by the senate?

Words of Wisdom.

Good actions ennoble us, and we are the sons of our own deeds.—Cervantes.

Hints on Etiquette.

A person who talks in a loud voice in public places is a nuisance. Check on yourself to see if you are one of these broadcasters of confidential chatter when you are conversing with a friend.

One-Minute Test Answers.

1. The heredity-bearing particles or substances of the germ cells.
2. Yes, if it is keeping correct time, it will make a fairly accurate compass when the sun is shining. Let it lie flat with the face up, with the hour hand pointing as nearly as possible toward the sun. A line running from center of dial to a point half way between the hour hand and the point indicating 12 o'clock will point due south in the northern hemisphere and due north in the southern hemisphere.
3. Yes. Richard Menton Johnson of Kentucky was so elected when Martin Van Buren was elected president.

No Sure Cure for Sick Headache.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

In the examination of several hundred clinic patients with chronic, recurrent headache, I found that two types of headache accounted for at least 75 per cent of all of them. These were, first, the nervous headache, and what is known as migraine, or sick headache.

Some doctors believe that "migraine" is a myth. But I believe migraine is just as definite a disease entity as typhoid fever.

Ask the man who owns one. He is likely to call it "my headache." It belong to him, is individual to him. He knows when it is about to arrive. He may have other headaches, just as anybody may, but those are not like the ancient enemy. "My headache" is characteristic.

"Sick Headache."

It is often called sick headache because it is accompanied by digestive upsets—nausea almost invariably, vomiting often, but most likely a feeling of tightness as if all the digestive organs had gone on strike. When the feeling of tightness in the bowel region begins to let up, the headache is over.

Some persons have the abdominal symptoms without the headache. These people are subject to what they call bilious spells, which is just as good a name for them as anything.

Migraine headache is described as being on one side of the head only—hemicrania—though I have never seen this symptom very prominently to the fore. Flashes before the eyes and queer feelings usually precede the headache, so that the victim is aware of the approach of his "enemy." One friend of mine has a deep sleep and lovely dreams the night before his attack.

The attacks begin usually in late childhood and come on about once a month, or once a fortnight, for 20 or 30 years, passing away at the time of the change of life.

No Certain Relief.

As far as treatment is concerned, we are not able to say definitely that anything is certain for relief. Most patients try everything once, and then resign themselves to the inevitable and fight it with lying down in a dark room, with wet cloths on the forehead, and phenacetin if they can keep it down. Many find that if, in the early stages by superhuman efforts, they can get the bowels to move and then keep down several tablets of aspirin they will have a mild attack.

The theory has got about lately that migraine is a form of allergy. I am afraid I see little sense to this, and as a warning against undue optimism I quote from Vaughn's fine book on allergy: "In the good results as in the poor results of treatment, non-allergic factors were responsible for the individual attack with almost equal frequency (as allergic foods)." However, some cases of headache resembling migraine are found due to foods, so that it is worth trying to make a diagnosis of allergic response in any headache.

As Others See It

Diplomatic Equipment.

A new ambassador from Europe usually brings the following outfit: Credentials, gold-braided uniform and plumed chapeau, and a brand new "war debt adjustment" plan.—Washington Star.

Rugged Individualism.

The varied colors in the latest hat styles for men are a bit disturbing, but it's always the man's prerogative, you know, to wear what he pleases.—Kansas City Times.

Ohio Anecdotes

Corwin and Lincoln.

Students of history well may make parallel comparisons between Ohio Thomas Corwin and Abraham Lincoln.

Corwin, governor of Ohio from 1840 to '44, and U. S. senator for the next six years, possessed a kindly, benevolent spirit, tempered with a fine intellect, all of which may be recognized in Lincoln's personality.

Like Lincoln, Corwin was a keen humorist with ready witticisms used to cover up sadness.

Each was his own master, and each could focus his mind upon the problem at hand, concentrating all his attention to its solution.

Both rightly predicted the Mexican war in 1846. Both charged that greed of conquest prompted it. But their appeals availed nothing.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—No one in Washington is advertising it, but already there is British interference with American shipping in certain areas. Kept in the dark, but significant has been the British detention of a vessel belonging to the American West African Line which was carrying supplies to Monrovia, Liberia, to build the American legation.

The vessel was held up by the British at the port of Freetown on the coast of Sierra Leone, a British West African possession. The vessel was searched and finally released.

The supplies for the American legation were carried under the diplomatic seal of the United States, but despite this they apparently aroused British suspicion.

State department officials are mystified as to why the British were interested in these supplies. Their only explanation is that the supplies might have included dynamite for blasting the foundation of the legation building. The new legation will stand upon a rocky point.

The American West African Line flies the American flag, and its agency is the Barber Steamship Line of New York.

Note—During the first part of the World war the search and seizure of American vessels by the British caused almost as much official American resentment as German submarine sinkings. Some state department protests sent to England were just as vigorous as those sent to Germany.

No War Tycoons.

One important factor behind the president's plan to disband the War Resources board was a short paragraph buried in the 1939 version of the Army's Industrial mobilization plan which he did not see.

The mobilization plan is the blue-print of a semi-dictatorial super-government which the general staff proposes in case the U. S. becomes involved in war, and here is the paragraph which Roosevelt missed:

"The personnel to fill positions of responsibility in the War Resources administration should be obtained from the patriotic business leaders of the nation. The effect of strong and intelligent leadership is more important and will do more to secure voluntary co-operation of industry and civilian population than will any arbitrary regulations or organization charts that may be prepared, no matter how they may appear."

Roosevelt had read the 1936 version of the mobilization plan, which did not contain this language. But some of his militant advisers, shocked by the heavy J. P. Morgan representation on the war resources board and by the Wall Street-manned emergency brain trust set up by Secretary Morgenthau, took the trouble to examine the 1939 version.

What they found confirmed their fears that the military boys, supported by certain administration big shots, were quietly planning to shelve the normal government machinery in the event of war and set up a super-government of big business.

So they lost no time bringing the tell-tale paragraph to Roosevelt's attention. To say that he didn't like its pointed implications is putting it mildly.

Plenty of Experts.

Significantly, the president announced the exit of the war resources board without informing either the army or navy of his intentions. They knew nothing about it until they read the news in the papers. But Roosevelt was not so secretive with his inner circle advisers.

"The government has plenty of experts to handle any emergency that may arise," he declared in effect. "In 1917 the government was small and ill-equipped to cope with the great problems that arose when the country went to war. The situation is far different now. The government has been greatly expanded and has experienced and expert personnel to meet any emergency.

"For example: There would be no need to set up a food administrator, as was done in 1917, because the agriculture department has both the power and personnel to do such a job. And that goes for practically all other phases of activity. We don't want or need any super-government run by big business men either in peace or war. From my experience in the Wilson cabinet I know that in more than one instance highly-touted business tycoons were flops as public administrators."

No Bernie Baruch.

The first list of names sent to Roosevelt for appointment to the war resources board had as chairman Bernard Baruch, head of Wilson's war industries board.

Also on the list was the name of Leonard Ayres, the Cleveland statistician, as representative of the public, and that of Edward McGrady, able former assistant secretary of labor, as spokesman for labor. None of the three was chosen.

The reason why has never been satisfactorily explained. Ayres and McGrady did not know that they had been proposed, so said nothing. But Baruch had been secretly tipped off that he was to be chairman, and when he wasn't named, naturally he was offended.

A journalist intimate launched a caustic attack on the board, with the result that its members ho'-footed up to New York and held several secret consultations with Baruch in an effort to placate him.

Jim Farley.

Returning to his hotel from a bedtime walk, genial Jim Farley was accosted by a well-dressed stranger who said, "General, you don't know me but my name is Bob Jennings, jr., of Franklin, Tenn., and I had the pleasure of meeting you at the Philadelphia convention."

"Glad to see you again, Mr. Jennings."

"Thanks, General, that's very kind of you. This is a special pleasure to me, meeting you tonight."

"In what way?" asked Farley.

"Well, when I went home after meeting you the last time, I told my friends I'd shaken hands with you but they wouldn't believe me. Said I was puttin' on. Now I can tell them I did it again."

"You can do better than that," smiled Farley. Leading Jennings over to the newspaper counter, he bought a paper and in the upper margin wrote in the usual Farley-esque green ink, "Glad to have seen you again, Bob. James A. Farley."

"Now you take that home," said Jim, "and the folks will believe you."

But when ye pray, use not vain repetitions, as the heathen do: for they think that they shall be heard for their much speaking.—Matt. 6:7.

Old Home Site

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

FOR several days there was a whispered secret among our four. They improvised a carrier from a burlap sack and two long poles, and carried the littlest boy in it across the stubbly field. The hatchet, nails and small handsaw also disappeared. Even a ball of string, an old iron pot, knives and spoons, were missing from their accustomed places. They returned after several hours, grimy and with fingers muddy, and reported a wonderful time.

Today I was invited to go along. They led me across our farm to an old abandoned lane, close by a spreading elm tree. Near the edge of the neighbor's cornfield, I saw a little unfinished log house, about six by six, with a doorway toward the east. The house plans were outlined for my suggestions. There were shelves for kitchen ware and the plan included a stove and a chimney flue.

They led me to a spring that flowed from the bank nearby and wondered if the water would be good to use. I knew it would, from the constant flow, and from signs I saw. Down the secluded hollow aged willow trees stood with broken tops and giant girth. Some granite boulders in line showed where an ancient springhouse must have stood, with extended gable.

Farther northward on a slope overrun with burdock and bull thistles, we came upon the foundation of the old bank barn. Westward from this we trekked across and saw dense clumps of lilacs growing, one of the pink variety, the other white. A gnarled and crippled plum tree, and two sour cherry trees grew near the western border, where the house once stood. Several oldtime stalks of tea, almost smothered by the grass, grew in a fertile spot where once the garden lay. I tramped upon a rotten sill, roughhewn by hand, with a rusty wrought iron spike extending loosely through the meagre shell.

To the south, less than a score of scattered, twisted trunks of apple trees bore wormy fruit. A grazing herd of cattle ate them eagerly when any fell. The lane we had traveled down, with a row of fine shade trees on either side, was the old abandoned drive to this lost home.

Perhaps in this neglected spot—which children even now will choose as a playhouse site—were reared some sturdy citizens of the neighborhood. Here once was joy and pleasure, grief and pain—the home life of a human family.
